7 MEN KILLED AS SUB EXPLODES

STATE FORESTRY MEN, part of 1,600 battling the inferno, face a racing wall of flame near DeLuz, Cal., as a three-day-old fire which already has burned over an estimated 7,000 acres, roars toward the heavily wooded Cleveland National Forest.

75 Yanks Saved As Snorkel Craft Sinks On Arctic Cruise

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—The Navy announced today that a series of explosions in the battery room early today destroyed the USS Submarine Cochino with a loss of seven lives.

As the crippled craft wallowed in heavy Arctic seas near the northern tip of Norway, the USS Submarine Tusk rescued more than 75 of the crew. The Cochino, a modern Guppy-snorkel, then sank.

The two modern submarines, in company with two others, were on a cold water training cruise which took them across the Atlantic from New London, Conn. They had veered far northward after visiting Ireland.

The United States has "about 30" of the modernized snorkel submarines such as the Cochino. They were improved from German models captured at the end of the war.

The dead were listed as: Lt. Wilson M. Shafer Jr. of Stamford, Conn.; Melvin B. Henneberger of Gloucester City, N. J.; James Robert Miller of Liberty, Mo.; Robert L. Pinney of Sturgis, Mich.; Robert F. Brunner Jr. of Altoona, Pa.; John G. Guttermuth of Poquonock Bridge, Conn.

A civilian technician, who was not immediately identified, also was lost.

The two submarines, in company with the USS Toro and the USSR Corsair, left New London July 18 for a training cruise during which they visited Londerry, Ireland.

The four were under the overall command of Capt. Roy S. Benson of Concord, N. H.

Lt. Commander Rafael C. Benitez of Ponce, Puerto Rico, was in command of the submarine which was lost.

The Navy said that "seas running at the time were so high they seriously hampered rescue work."

The Tusk is proceeding with the survivors to the Norwegian port of Hammerfest, which the Navy said is the nearest port to the scene of the accident.

There was no statement on the number of injured, but the Navy said some will require medical attention.

AIR VIEW of the closing day of the 1949 Conservation Field Days at Apple Creek state school farm, near Wooster, shows part of the estimated 10,000 persons who watched Clarence Broshear of Hamilton take top honors in the Ohio contour plowing championships. The Butler county farmer will compete in the national championships at Des Moines, Ia., Sept. 15.

5 Are Dead In Quarrels

'Love Shootings' Hit Philadelphia

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 26—Five persons were dead today and two critically wounded in three separate "love shootings" that rocked Philadelphia within a brief span of time.

In all three cases, shattered romance was blamed for the flare-up of violence in the "City of Brotherly Love."

In one, a teen-aged boy killed his sweetheart and then committed suicide. In another, a nurse critically wounded a young doctor. In the third, an ex-GI killed his son and his brother-in-law, and then himself.

Police said that the veteran, Juan Rodry, 34, a native of Colombia, was embittered when his wife, Florence, 27, left him and took their five-year-old son, Ian, to live with her brother.

Late last night, they said, Rodry went to the home of his brother-in-law, Dr. Sidney J. Kine, 31, an eye specialist. He shot and fatally wounded the doctor, fired three shots at Ian, killing him instantly, wounded Mrs. Kine in the abdomen, and then turned his last bullet on himself.

In nearby Chester, Ralph Ambrosano Jr., 19, had long been enamored of 16-year-old Dolores Krause, a high-school pupil who lived across the street from his home. She returned his affection.

TUESDAY NIGHT, the two quarrelled violently, over what no one knows. Police said that Ralph beat Dolores.

Yesterday afternoon, he called to her as she passed him on the street, but she walked on, ignoring him.

Neighbors who witnessed the scene said that Ralph then drew a revolver and fired two shots into Dolores' back. As she fell dead, he fired a fatal shot into his own temple.

The third shooting occurred in a midtown Philadelphia hotel. Police identified the victim as Dr. John Finley of Birdsboro, a 24-year-old hospital interne. He was in critical condition with a bullet wound in his chest.

Charged with the shooting was a nurse, Miss June Alteri, 23, of Riverside. Police said she shot Finley in a "lover's quarrel."

Ag Experts Say Farmer Take Reaches 7-Year Low

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—The Agriculture Department reports that the farmers' share of the retail food dollar has slumped to its lowest point in nearly seven years.

The latest drop occurred in June when farmers received only 48 cents of every dollar spent by American consumers.

June also marked the third consecutive month during which farmers have received less than half of the consumer's dollar.

The latest figure is seven cents below the record high which farmers received in January, 1948, and four cents less than the year-ago level.

The department attributed the steady slide in farmers' margins over the last year to a general cut in retail food prices and a jump in marketing charges.

County Boy, 11, Hurt When Truck Crashes Trailer

An 11-year-old Washington Township lad suffered an injured left shoulder Wednesday when he was thrown from a trailer in an accident on Route 23 north of Circleville.

He is George Seimer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Brady Seimer of Circleville Route 4.

Deputy Sheriff Verne Pontius said young Seimer had been riding in a trailer behind a farm tractor when a coal truck, driven by John Marquis, 17, of Wellston, smashed into the rear of the trailer, throwing the youngster to the road.

Pontius said Marquis told him he had seen the trailer too late to stop. He estimated that he had been travelling at about 25 miles per hour at the time, the deputy said.

The youngster was x-rayed in Berger hospital. No bones were believed to be fractured.

A silage cutter which was being hauled on the trailer was totally destroyed by the crash, Pontius said.

Marquis was fined $50 and costs for reckless operation in the court of Magistrate Oscar Root.

The agency added:

"FARM PRICES have absorbed the greater part of both the increases and the decreases in retail prices."

During the last 12 months, the department said that retail farm food prices fell about seven percent, marketing charges increased one percent and farm prices slumped about 14 percent.

However, the American farmer is still far better off today than he was during 1935-39 when his share of the food dollar averaged only 40 cents. In 1932, it reached a record low of 32 cents.

Declines in farm prices were recorded in every commodity group except meat products between May and June.

Farm meat-product prices rose three percent but this was more than offset by nine percent drop in fruits and vegetables and a four percent dip in bakery and cereal products.

In another report, the department said that Washington growers of "delicious" apples received only 26 percent of what the fruit sold for in Chicago.

Twenty-four percent of the Chicago retail price went for washing, grading, packing, cold-storage and other services at the packing plant; 14 percent went for transportation from the packing plant to Chicago, and 36 percent went for wholesaling and retailing after the apples reached their destination.

Wonderful Hog Gets Fair Invite

LA GRANGE, Ky., Aug. 26—Word filtered down to LaGrange from Portland, Ind., that Farmer Jack Hough had a wonderful hog named Barney.

Barney could be ridden by small children and was as good as a pointer in flushing game. So Roy Garr, dog show chairman for the current Olkham County Fair sent Hough an invitation:

"Bring Barney to LaGrange and he can compete in the horse show, the dog show and the hog show."

again, won't you?"

What led up to this breaking of the key political question of any four years in which a President is in office were questions about what Mr. Truman would do in next year's by-election campaign.

A reporter said:

Florida Battens Down Against Expected Blow

MIAMI, Aug. 26—An erratic and dangerous Atlantic hurricane bearing winds up to 120 miles an hour, roared through the Upper Bahama Islands today and bore down on the battered-down Florida "Gold Coast."

An advisory from the Miami weather bureau located the storm center 110 miles due east of Miami, with its "eye" swinging toward Fort Lauderdale, 25 miles north of Miami.

Forecasters said the hurricane should strike the coast within 15 miles of Fort Lauderdale around 4 p. m. (EST).

Bahamas dispatches said that Nassau and nearby islands felt the force of a 75-mile an hour wind in the early morning hours but there was only minor damage to trees and vegetation, with no casualties reported.

STORM WARNINGS were ordered up at 10 a. m. on the Florida southwest coast from Fort Myers southward.

Weathermen said the hurricane's greatest danger will be in the area from Fort Lauderdale to Stuart, which includes the teeming Palm Beach section, a Wintertime tourist mecca.

Southeastern Florida, where scores of bad storms have struck in the past, was thoroughly battered down for the onslaught of wind and rain.

Time-tested precautions were taken. Stores and homes were boarded up. Many business offices in Miami closed for the day. Airlines postponed or cancelled flights in and out of Miami.

Grady Norton, chief hurricane forecaster in Miami, reported that the hurricane grew more powerful during the night, but added:

"It is still not unusually severe."

When the storm does get to the Florida mainland it probably will skirt the coast for a while before landing its punch.

SWANK FLORIDA resort cities like Palm Beach and Miami Beach were threatened by the storm which has been zig-zagging through the Atlantic since last Tuesday.

Winds were reported rising on the Lower East Florida coast as the storm approached. The weather warned that tides would be extremely high the length of the Florida shore today.

Hurricane warnings were posted from Vero Beach south to Miami and inland to Lake Okechobee.

Northeast storm warnings—notes of winds of less than 75-mile-an-hour velocity—were hoisted from Fernandino, near the Georgia-Florida state line, to Key West, on the southernmost tip of the Florida Keys.

GOP SWINGING SUPPORT

Anderson Farm Plan Seen Getting OK In Congress

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—Prospects that Congress will pass farm price support legislation before adjournment brightened today when substantial Republican backing developed in the House for the Anderson "compromise" program.

Rep. Hope, Kan., House GOP leader on farm legislation, disclosed that he is sympathetically inclined toward the basic structure of the Anderson plan, which is under consideration by the Senate Agriculture Committee. Hope said:

"I think the plan offers a very good basis for legislation."

The committee concluded hearings on the plan yesterday. Chairman Thomas, (D) Okla., said it probably would meet next week to report the legislation to the Senate. Committee approval of the legislation is forecast, although Thomas is against it.

Senate Majority Leader Lucas, (D) Ill., threw full administration backing behind the program, which was drafted by a Senate agriculture subcommittee headed by Sen. Anderson, (D) N. H. Anderson was formerly agriculture secretary.

LUCAS PREDICTED Senate approval of the plan, which provides for price supports ranging from 75 to 90 percent of the parity yardstick for basic farm commodities where production limitation programs are in effect. Basic commodities are wheat, corn, cotton, peanuts, rice and tobacco.

Similar protection is provided for "storable non-basic" commodities, although the agriculture secretary has wide discretion on application of price supports.

Lucas declared flatly that a farm price support legislation "must be passed" before Congress adjourns.

Lucas commented that some Republican senators who voted for the resolution to let the House take a 26-day recess would find that their votes would boomerang against them in farm sections.

He said passage of the resolution would have meant that there would not be time to pass farm legislation before adjournment, with the result that the Aiken "flexible" 60 to 90 percent farm plan would have gone into effect Jan. 1.

THE MAJORITY leader asserted that farmers are greatly concerned over this possibility, since it might mean a sharp reduction in government price supports.

Forecasts in the House are that Republicans, who hold the balance of power between Southern and Truman Democrats, will support generally Hope's backing of the Anderson plan.

One admitted obstacle, however, is the attitude of the Southerners, who do not want to recede from the principle that farm commodities should be supported at 90 percent of parity where production limitation programs are in effect.

5 Percenter Is Silent

Testimony Refused Before Probers

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—John Maragon refused to testify in the "five percent" probe today on grounds of self-incrimination after Senate investigators bared evidence that he banked $119,608 in six years while reporting income of only $30,000 for tax purposes.

Sen. Mundt, (R) S. D., immediately declared that Maragon, self-described "close friend" of Presidential Military Aide Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, may "be confronted with a case of tax fraud."

Mundt also asserted that the investigating committee has a "clear-cut case of perjury" against Maragon, the ex-Kansas City bookbaker who became a frequent White House visitor.

Maragon's attorney announced that he has refused to allow Maragon to take the witness stand in the "five percent" probe on the ground that his testimony "might tend to incriminate him."

The lawyer, Myron G. Ehrlich, accused the committee of violating Maragon's constitutional rights in asking questions about his "personal life" during a secret hearing.

TESTIMONY of an analysis of Maragon's accounts in three banks was given by Carmine S. (Continued on Page Two)

'Hot Stuff' Ahead, Weather Experts Claim

That's what the U. S. meteorologist said Friday in describing Ohio's weather for the next couple of days.

"But don't get excited," he added. "The nights will still be cool and the humidity will remain in a temperate state." In other words, the humidity will not go over 100 grains per pound, the discomfort zone.

Friday will be very hot and sunny, the forecaster said, with no rain in sight. "As a matter of fact," he continued, "there is no appreciable amount of rain anywhere in the country."

The mercury is expected to rise to between 90 and 95 degrees over most of the state Saturday and then drop an average of 30 degrees at night.

Ohio is in a mild drought, observers said as they pointed out that only .61 of an inch of rain (Continued on Page Two)

Living Index Holds Steady

DETROIT, Aug. 26—General Motors Corp. announced today that latest cost of living figures released by the Bureau of Labor Statistics will not mean a cut in wages for its 350,000 employees.

The company said it has agreed with the United Auto Workers-CIO that there is a slight "bias" in the rent figures included in the index. Because of this, GM will add eight-tenths of a point to the consumers price index.

Truman Fools 'Em; Won't Say 'Yes' Or 'No'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—President Truman today confounded all political prognosticators by not saying "Yes," "No," or "Maybe."

The President was asked the $64 question that comes to all Presidents in his press conference yesterday.

In a rapid interchange of questions on politics, he was asked:

"You will, of course, run

again, won't you?"

What led up to this breaking of the key political question of any four years in which a President is in office were questions about what Mr. Truman would do in next year's by-election campaign.

A reporter said:

"Mr. President, when you spoke to the Girl's Nation (a group of teen-age girls of the American Legion auxiliary) today you gave an implication that you might not run again."

A teen-ager said she hoped to be an ambassador within five years. The President replied:

"I told her that she might, if she studied hard and learned all about foreign affairs. But, I couldn't make her any promises because that is a year or two beyond the time when my term expires."

Mr. Truman said that he wouldn't bother about the primaries but "when the chips are down" he might get into the fray.

A correspondent quickly interposed:

"You are going to run again, yourself, aren't you?"

The President replied:

"I'll campaign after the chips are down.

"I'll answer that at the proper time."

"I'm not in the same position of President Coolidge when he said 'I do not choose to run'."

The President obviously was dodging the top question.

It is well recognized that were he to give his intentions now—if it is to be not to run again—he would lose, in the next three years, the driving force that a President has in office not only as chief executive, but the chief of his political party.

Among astute political observers there is a conviction that he will never admit his intentions regarding the future in politics until the weeks that approach the next national convention.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—John Maragon refused to testify in the "five percent" probe today on grounds of self-incrimination after Senate investigators bared evidence that he banked $119,608 in six years while reporting income of only $30,000 for tax purposes.

Sen. Mundt, (R) S. D., immediately declared that Maragon, self-described "close friend" of Presidential Military Aide Maj. Gen. Harry Vaughan, may "be confronted with a case of tax fraud."

Mundt also asserted that the investigating committee has a "clear-cut case of perjury" against Maragon, the ex-Kansas City bootblack who became a frequent White House visitor.

Maragon's attorney announced that he has refused to allow Maragon to take the witness stand in the "five percent" probe on the ground that his testimony "might tend to incriminate him."

The lawyer, Myron G. Ehrlich, accused the committee of violating Maragon's constitutional rights in asking questions about his "personal life" during a secret hearing.

TESTIMONY of an analysis of Maragon's accounts in three banks was given by Carmine S. (Continued on Page Two)

'Hot Stuff' Ahead, Weather Experts Claim

That's what the U. S. meteorological said Friday in describing Ohio's weather for the next couple of days.

"But don't get excited," he added, "the nights will still be cool and the humidity will remain in a temperate state." In other words, the humidity will not go over 100 grains per pound, the discomfort zone.

Friday will be very hot and sunny, the forecaster said, with no rain in sight. "As a matter of fact," he continued, "there is no appreciable amount of rain anywhere in the country."

The mercury is expected to rise to between 90 and 95 degrees over most of the state Saturday and then drop an average of 30 degrees at night.

Ohio is in a mild drought, observers said as they pointed out that only .61 of an inch of rain (Continued on Page Two)

Belino, a committee investigator, followed reading of a memo from Ambassador Henry F. Grady declaring that Maragon's 1946 activities in Greece were a "nuisance" and a "source of embarrassment" to him and the American mission in that country.

Grady branded as "absolutely untrue" a statement by the ex-Kansas City bootblack that he had reported cases of excessive drinking and association with Communists by American personnel in Greece. Maragon was sent home from Greece on instructions from Washington.

Grady said: 1. Maragon was flashing a picture of himself and President Truman and "stating or at least implying, that he was sent by the President to report to him directly on the activities of the mission."

2. "He got into trouble with the Air Transport Command because he began 'investigating' them and implied he was doing this on authority from Washington."

Grady said he arrived in Athens Feb. 24, 1946, and on Feb. 27 he received a wire from the State Department "instructing me to terminate Maragon's employment with the mission and to send him home."

Girl Is Worried Over Terrible Pignapping Case

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26—Miss Joyce Lechner, 14, of Cleveland was still looking for clues today in the tragic pignapping case, but no one in her neighborhood was squealing.

Buttons, her little girl guinea pig, and Bows, the little boy guinea pig, have been missing since Tuesday.

The young owner was willing to give the thief a free medicine dropper to keep the stolen Porkers alive, and no questions asked.

The young one and one-half inch wigglers feed on waffles, pancakes, oatmeal and popples as well as the neighbor's sunflower leaves and the usual rabbit fare of lettuce and carrots, Joyce said.

At home waiting for Buttons and Bows are their parents, Duchess and Duke, two older children of the saddened couple, Skeezix and Stinky, and two new goldfish, as yet unnamed.

Grove City Man Enters Low Bid For Paint Job

Bids to repair and paint the standpipe have been received by Circleville water department. Low bid of $1,365 was submitted by John E. Stewart of Grove City.

Three other bids were submitted: Atlas Tank and Steel Co. of Fremont, $1,465; John B. Taylor and Son of Columbus, $1,720; and Dixie Tank and Bridge Co. of Memphis, Tenn., $2,150.

Ervin Leist, waterworks manager, said the bid submitted by the Dixie company will not be considered because the company failed to submit a check or bond insuring fulfillment of the contract in the event of acceptance.

Leist said the work will not be started until after Pickaway County Fair. He explained that the tank will be completely drained for the work, and the holdoff is to insure plenty of water during fair week for any emergency.

The work will consist of scaling and painting the tank inside and out and making any necessary repairs. It will be painted black.

While the job is being done water will be pumped directly into the city mains, Leist said. He added that the system will be protected by a spring relief valve. After the pressure builds up to 80 pounds the valve opens and water goes to waste until the pressure drops.

If this were not done, there might be danger of damage to plumbing.

Wells Assigned To State Fair

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells of Circleville has been assigned to a special 10-day detail in Columbus during the Ohio State Fair.

Wells this year is to head a detail of patrolmen in charge of truck parking near the railroad tracks at the Fairgrounds, according to Columbus headquarters.

Formerly the local patrolman was assigned to touring the fairgrounds with a group of patrol students. The tour is considered a "must" for graduation into the patrol.

Cutter Racing To Save Youth

HALIFAX, N. S., Aug. 26—The Coast Guard Cutter Coox Bay raced toward the British liner Parthia today in a dramatic "mercy" dash to save a 21-year-old New Jersey youth stricken with polio.

The cutter is expected to rendezvous with the Cunard liner, last reported 180 miles south of Halifax yet today.

On board the cutter was Dr. Nathaniel L. Greenfield of New York City and special medical equipment needed if the boy, Sidney C. Moody Jr. of Plainfield, N. J., is to survive.

There will be round and square dancing every Saturday night at Twin Elms Hall, South Bloomfield. Music will be by "The Melodiers." Roy Harrington, caller.

Suzanne Skinner, 10, daughter of Mrs. Georgia Skinner of Cincinnati, was admitted Thursday in Berger hospital as a medical patient.

Renick Newland, a medical patient in Berger hospital, was removed Thursday to his home on Williamsport Route 2.

Mrs. Carle Snider of East Union street submitted to surgery Thursday in Mt. Carmel hospital, Columbus. She is in Room 249.

Family tickets to the Pickaway county fair admitting husband and wife and all children under 12, including parking every session of the fair, Monday thru Friday, on sale for $2.50 at Gallaher Drug Store, cigar counter.

Mrs. Helen Wertman of 123 Seyfert avenue, teacher of grade seven and physical education in Pickaway Township school, has resigned her job because of ill health. County Superintendent George D. McDowell said no replacement for her has been found.

W. B. Watts of 534 East Mound street left Friday to take over the job of gate supervisor in Ohio State Fairgrounds. He has held the job for the last seven years.

Circleville planning and zoning commission has granted building permits to Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Rader to build a house on North Pickaway street, and to Gene Smith to build a house on Barnes avenue.

Mrs. Sam Hunter of Whistler was admitted to Logan hospital Thursday morning.

Mrs. Jack Smallwood was reported seriously ill in her home at 401 North Scioto street Friday.

'Miss America' Finds Romance Abroad, Claim

ROME, Aug. 26—Bebe Shoppe, 18-year-old "Miss America," reportedly has found romance on her European tour with a lanky youth from Illinois.

David Meyer, of Glencoe, Ill., who is supposed to be studying in Paris, apparently played "hooky" to follow the Hopkins, Minn., beauty to Italy on Wednesday.

The reported romance produced at least one embarrassing moment for Bebe, who is the guest of an Italian family at a beautiful villa in Fregene, a swanky Summer resort.

In the presence of a reporter and photographer, her hostess said:

"I'll be happy to have you and your fiancé come to lunch tomorrow."

Bebe, plainly upset by the phrasing of the invitation, remarked that she did not know if it could be arranged. Since then, she and Meyer have shunned being photographed together.

Taxpayer Suit Names Nye

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Kenneth and Forest Litterest of Waverly had a taxpayer suit on file against Lt. Gov. George D. Nye here today, charging he conspired with Pike County officials to build a road on his property at Lake White.

The suit in Franklin County common pleas court asked recovery of $9,050. Nye said the suit had "no merit."

Another taxpayer suit filed recently in Pike County accused county officials of building a private road on a real estate development owned by Nye. The lieutenant governor insisted the road was a public thoroughfare.

Fisher Body Dispute Cleared

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26—Production at the giant Fisher Body plant here was back in full swing today after some 4,000 employees, protesting the suspension of their union president, agreed to return to work.

A. B. Kelley, labor relations director of the company, would not comment on the status of Charles K. Beckman, Local 45 president, who was suspended from work after a fist fight Wednesday with a fellow employee. From other sources, however, it was learned that Beckman had been reinstated.

Thugs Refuse Let Man Work

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26—Edward Finkle, 65, bought a small delicatessen on Cleveland's east side six months ago to provide a little retirement income, but he may have to work for a long time.

Robbers won't let him make a profit. Three armed masked men entered his store around 10 p. m. last night, forced him to face the wall behind the counter, and ransacked his cash register of $25.

This wouldn't have been so bad, Finkle said, except that he was robbed of $160 three months ago by armed robbers.

Nary A 'Sniff' Received Here Of Liquor Haul

Pickaway County lawmen failed to get a "sniff" of the $50,000 liquor shipment reportedly hijacked just outside Columbus on Route 23 Thursday night.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he and Deputies Carl Radcliff and Verne Pontius were alert to watch for the stolen truck, but that it apparently had not come through this county.

The sheriff said he and the deputies were patrolling the county's roads until the wee hours Wednesday.

According to reports, a truck carrying the valuable whisky shipment was stopped two miles south of Columbus by three masked gunmen.

Driver Harry L. Dougherty, 34, of Kentucky, told police the bandits forced his truck to the side of the road with a 1937 sedan, ordered him from "the cab and took over."

No trace of the stolen truck, the car or the three masked men and the booze has been found.

9 Youths Said 'Delinquent'

Nine youths have been listed as delinquent in Pickaway County Selective Service board office.

Mrs. Betty Heath, clerk, said the youths have failed to answer correspondence. They are:

George Ricketts of West High street, Virgil Frasure of Ashville Route 2, Paul Bora of Ashville Route 1, Albert E. Halton of Derby, Earl W. McClain of South Washington street, John C. Rogers of Derby, Arthur J. Hill of Circleville Route 4, Joe E. Wright of West Mill street, and Earl W. Knott of South Washington street.

Lockbourne Man Killed On Road In Shadeville

Almon F. Morgan, 76, partially blind Lockbourne Route 1 resident, was killed instantly at about 11:35 p. m. Thursday when he was struck by an auto in Shadeville.

Columbus state highway patrolmen said Morgan had been walking in the middle of the southbound traffic lane of Route 23 when he was struck by an auto operated by Paul Murdoch, 21, of Dundas.

Patrolmen said an approaching auto's lights had blinded Murdoch so that he was unable to see the pedestrian. Authorities said Morgan died instantaneously from head injuries, fractured arms and legs and internal injuries. Murdoch was exonerated, according to the patrol.

Funeral services are to be held at 2 p. m. Monday in Grimes Funeral Home, Canal Winchester. Burial will be in Walnut Hill cemetery.

Surviving the victim are seven sons; Almon of Pickerington, Millard of Mansfield, Harold and Willard of Columbus, Clovis of Groveport, Joseph of Obetz and Emerson of Shadeville; five daughters, Mrs. Ora Hanna of Canal Winchester, Mrs. Lula Hoshor of Carroll, Mrs. Hazel Root of Columbus and Misses Reba and Mattie at home; one brother; and three sisters. Friends may call in the funeral home.

Ohio State Fair Ready To Open

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Howard S. Foust, appointed state agriculture director yesterday, still has another job to do—getting the Ohio State Fair ready for its 95th opening tomorrow.

As it stands, the fair is about ready to go, with farmers putting the finishing touches to their displays and thousands of children under 12 waiting for the gates to open so they can get in free.

Foust spoke at noon yesterday, a few hours after his appointment to the state post. He said everything is ready.

Foust succeeds A. W. Marion, formerly of Circleville, who was named to head the new unified Department of Natural Resources.

Legion Corps Eyes Big Show

Circleville American Legion definitely will parade a drum and bugle corps here during Pumpkin Show.

Jack Simison, head of the organization, said an 18-member band was formed during first rehearsals Thursday night and that an additional 10 or 12 pieces are to be added this Fall.

Eight buglers answered first call Thursday, along with four tenor drummers, four snare drummers, one bass drummer and a cymbal player.

Grove City Man Enters Low Bid For Paint Job

Bids to repair and paint the standpipe have been received by Circleville water department.

Low bid of $1,365 was submitted by John E. Stewart of Grove City.

Three other bids were submitted: Atlas Tank and Steel Co. of Fremont, $1,465; John B. Taylor and Son of Columbus, $1,720; and Dixie Tank and Bridge Co. of Memphis, Tenn., $2,150.

Ervin Leist, waterworks manager, said the bid submitted by the Dixie company will not be considered because the company failed to submit a check or bond insuring fulfillment of the contract in the event of acceptance.

Leist said the work will not be started until after Pickaway County Fair. He explained that the tank will be completely drained for the work, and the holdoff is to insure plenty of water during fair week for any emergency.

The work will consist of scaling and painting the tank inside and out and making any necessary repairs. It will be painted black.

While the job is being done water will be pumped directly into the city mains, Leist said. He added that the system will be protected by a spring relief valve. After the pressure builds up to 80 pounds the valve opens and water goes to waste until the pressure drops.

If this were not done, there might be danger of damage to plumbing.

Wells Assigned To State Fair

State Highway Patrolman Clyde Wells of Circleville has been assigned to a special 10-day detail in Columbus during the Ohio State Fair.

Wells this year is to head a detail of patrolmen in charge of truck parking near the railroad tracks at the Fairgrounds, according to Columbus headquarters.

Formerly the local patrolman was assigned to touring the fairgrounds with a group of patrol students. The tour is considered a "must" for graduation into the patrol.

Fisher Body Dispute Cleared

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26—Production at the giant Fisher Body plant here was back in full swing today after some 4,000 employees, protesting the suspension of their union president, agreed to return to work.

A. B. Kelley, labor relations director of the company, would not comment on the status of Charles K. Beckman, Local 45 president, who was suspended from work after a fist fight Wednesday with a fellow employee. From other sources, however, it was learned that Beckman had been reinstated.

Thugs Refuse Let Man Work

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26—Edward Finkle, 65, bought a small delicatessen on Cleveland's east side six months ago to provide a little retirement income, but he may have to work for a long time.

Robbers won't let him make a profit.

Three armed masked men entered his store around 10 p. m. last night, forced him to face the wall behind the counter, and ransacked his cash register of $25.

This wouldn't have been so bad, Finkle said, except that he was robbed of $160 three months ago by armed robbers.

Nary A 'Sniff' Received Here Of Liquor Haul

Pickaway County lawmen failed to get a "sniff" of the $50,000 liquor shipment reportedly hijacked just outside Columbus on Route 23 Thursday night.

Sheriff Charles Radcliff said he and Deputies Carl Radcliff and Verne Pontius were alert to watch for the stolen truck, but that it apparently had not come through this county.

The sheriff said he and the deputies were patrolling the county's roads until the wee hours Wednesday.

According to reports, a truck carrying the valuable whisky shipment was stopped two miles south of Columbus by three masked gunmen.

Driver Harry L. Dougherty, 34, of Kentucky, told police the bandits forced his truck to the side of the road with a 1937 sedan, ordered him from 'the cab and took over.

No trace of the stolen truck, the car or the three masked men and the booze has been found.

9 Youths Said 'Delinquent'

Nine youths have been listed as delinquent in Pickaway County Selective Service board office.

Mrs. Betty Heath, clerk, said the youths have failed to answer correspondence. They are:

George Ricketts of West High street, Virgil Frasure of Ashville Route 2, Paul Bora of Ashville Route 1, Albert E. Halton of Derby, Earl W. McClain of South Washington street, John C. Rogers of Derby, Arthur J. Hill of Circleville Route 4, Joe E. Wright of West Mill street, and Earl W. Knott of South Washington street.

Lockbourne Man Killed On Road In Shadeville

Almon F. Morgan, 76, partially blind Lockbourne Route 1 resident, was killed instantly at about 11:35 p. m. Thursday when he was struck by an auto in Shadeville.

Columbus state highway patrolmen said Morgan had been walking in the middle of the southbound traffic lane of Route 23 when he was struck by an auto operated by Paul Murdoch, 21, of Dundas.

Patrolmen said an approaching auto's lights had blinded Murdoch so that he was unable to see the pedestrian. Authorities said Morgan died instantaneously from head injuries, fractured arms and legs and internal injuries. Murdoch was exonerated, according to the patrol.

Funeral services are to be held at 2 p. m. Monday in Grimes Funeral Home, Canal Winchester. Burial will be in Walnut Hill cemetery.

Surviving the victim are seven sons; Almon of Pickerington, Millard of Mansfield, Harold and Willard of Columbus, Clovis of Groveport, Joseph of Obetz and Emerson of Shadeville; five daughters, Mrs. Ora Hanna of Canal Winchester, Mrs. Lula Hoshor of Carroll, Mrs. Hazel Root of Columbus and Misses Reba and Mattie at home; one brother; and three sisters. Friends may call in the funeral home.

Ohio State Fair Ready To Open

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Howard S. Foust, appointed state agriculture director yesterday, still has another job to do—getting the Ohio State Fair ready for its 95th opening tomorrow.

As it stands, the fair is about ready to go, with farmers putting the finishing touches to their displays and thousands of children under 12 waiting for the gates to open so they can get in free.

Foust spoke at noon yesterday, a few hours after his appointment to the state post. He said everything is ready.

Foust succeeds A. W. Marion, formerly of Circleville, who was named to head the new unified Department of Natural Resources.

Legion Corps Eyes Big Show

Circleville American Legion definitely will parade a drum and bugle corps here during Pumpkin Show.

Jack Simison, head of the organization, said an 18-member band was formed during first rehearsals Thursday night and that an additional 10 or 12 pieces are to be added this fall.

Eight buglers answered first call Thursday, along with four tenor drummers, four snare drummers, one bass drummer and a cymbal player.

Word Definition Brings Problem For Newsmen

Trials and tribulations of a newspaperman can be many—and often very confusing.

Friday, The Circleville Herald received on its teletype machine a news story from the main International News Service office in Columbus concerning a hold-up in Cleveland.

The story mentions that the fleeing gunmen dropped "a felt hat, an old loafer shoe, a Western novel and a bag-shaped babushka."

The latter word stumped the Herald editor. He consulted Webster's dictionary.

Said Webster: "Babushka" is Russian for grandmother.

"A 'bag-shaped grandmother' indeed!"

The Herald editor telephoned the chief of the INS bureau in Columbus—collect, of course.

The bureau chief haw-hawed, but "babushka" was a new word to him, too. So he called the Cleveland branch office of INS where the story first was filed.

Came the answer: "Babushka is a head kerchief worn by women."

The Herald editor still isn't sure. Somebody is a dope, Webster? Brazen thugs who wear women's apparel? Or a newspaperman? (Cleveland variety, that is.)

Registrars Named For Licenses

Autoists To Get Last Short Permits

Five Pickaway Countians have been re-named to issue the last of the regular one-year driver's licenses here this fall.

The deputy registrars named for this year's rush are: Joe Brink, Circleville deputy, 404 East Union street; Georgia Hoover, Ashville deputy, 46 Wright street; O. M. Beckett, Commercial Point deputy; Kenneth Osterle, New Holland deputy, Front street; and Smith Ling Jr., Wilmsport.

Under the new law providing for three-year operator licenses this will be the last time that the driving citizenery of Ohio will troop to their local registrars at the same time for licenses.

The new law also will cut down the number of registrars, since licenses will be issued every three years on the applicant's birthday beginning after the end of September, 1950.

Deputy registrars are generally recommended by local political committees, in this case by local Democratic chairman, The Bureau of Motor Vehicles usually follows such recommendations in making the appointment of deputy registrars.

ABOUT 40 PERCENT of the registrars now are checked off the list after rush seasons for driver's licenses and auto tags.

Under the new system, however, the number of registrars will be cut down but those remaining will be operative throughout the year. The exact number of future registrars has not yet been determined.

Frank M. Quinn, state registrar of motor vehicles, said that another change will go into effect this year regarding the Sept. 6-30 period to obtain new licenses. Quinn pointed out that anyone failing to get a new license within 90 days after Sept. 30 will be required to take another drivers examination in order to secure a new license.

The new three-year license will offer some drivers whose birthdays fall in late Summer a chance to operate for almost two years on a license theoretically good for only one year.

It works like this: Suppose your birthday falls on July 15. This fall you take out a license which is issued on the same basis as has been the practice since 1936 when the drivers license law was first enacted.

The 1950 license is good until Sept. 30 of 1950—and then some. If your birthday is in the Fall, you're just out of luck. You'll have to take out a new license shortly after the 1950 one expires.

But consider this person who was born on July 15. HIS 1950 license is good up until Sept. 30. Then, the new law states, he must take out a new license on his next birthday after that date.

But Mr. "X" was born in July; therefore he keeps on driving for almost another year, not applying for his new three-year license until 30 days prior to his birthday in 1951.

All the while he has been driving on a license issued this Fall.

Chief, Judge Warn Kids About Teasing Horses

Juvenile bicycle riders and cob throwers bothering horses stabled in Pickaway County Fairgrounds have been warned to "lay off".

Police Chief William F. McCrady said he has been notified that youngsters are teasing the sensitive saddle show horses stabled in the Fairgrounds by riding bicycles in and near the horse barns and throwing cobs at the animals.

Juvenile Judge George D. Young said he would back up the chief's warning.

One horse owner reportedly has moved his two animals from the barns because they were unable to work out after the youngsters invaded.

They met for the first time in the recreation hall, graduated by easy stages from rhumbas to rowboats, and on the second midnight discovered they were hem-over-shoulder - padding in love.

For the rest of that first week, the lovers were together every minute of the day and quite a few minutes of the night—except at mealtimes when Tony would head for the spaghetti and Shirley for the blithe-making blintzes.

Naturally, the couple figured on sharing the same table during their second week but, when it came time to register, an argument started up.

SHIRLEY maintained that life without borscht was no life at all, while Tony insisted that minestrone was all that kept a man's soul stuck to his body.

Family-Type Farm Lauded

XENIA, Aug. 26 — State Grange Master Joseph W. Fichter told a Greene County Grange picnic that the family-type farm is still able to operate efficiently in this age of mechanization.

Fichter noted that many saw agriculture changing from a way of life to large scale factory farming. But he added:

"It has become apparent recently that increased mechanization is strengthening the position of the family type farm."

The Grange chieftain said the largest proportion of family labor is found on those modern farms where machinery is utilized to the best degree.

"It's a good notion," said Tony, "but we can't afford it."

The union leader picked up his cards. "If I make this triple schneid," he said, "I figure to win enough to cover the extra week. Kibitz and root for me."

On the third card, Dubinsky went gin and the game was over. "Good luck and happy eating," he said.

"Gee, thanks," said Shirley. "This thing might have developed into something serious."

"Yea," said Tony. "Lucky for us you won."

"How could I lose?" smiled Dubinsky. "I had love on my side."

PROGRESS ON POLIO

FOR THE parents of small children it seems that Summer has come to be a period dominated by half-thought, unspoken fears of poliomyelitis, or infantile paralysis. As Summer follows Summer each appears to bring more cases of the disease than the last. There is no comfort for parents anxiously asking what they can do to protect their children from exposure.

More progress is being made in the medical study of polio than appearances would indicate. Authorities do not believe that the yearly increase in the announced number of cases means the disease is infecting more people. They think it reflects instead the facts that more people each year seek medical care for infections which might be polio, and that diagnosis is quicker and more sure. A new guide for health officers has been prepared by a group of authorities on polio, based on conclusions of current studies. It does not tell how to prevent or cure polio, but it does contain much new knowledge.

One result of the new conclusions, drawn up this Summer, should be a narrowing of the general control measures. Authorities on the disease no longer believe any protection is gained by closing swimming pools, theatres and schools, or banning public gatherings, as long as proper sanitary safeguards are used. They question the value of quarantine of known cases. They want to discourage these and other common practices and ideas which build up a panicky fear of polio.

Public awareness of the disease and recognition of its beginning symptoms, so that medical aid can be sought quickly, has doubtless contributed as much as any one factor to the progress which has been made. Further development of this awareness, with intelligent concern but without fright and panic, may yet provide medical science with the help which will enable it to solve the mystery.

REWARD FOR MOTHERS

A REPORT from Tel Aviv tells of the Israeli government's decision to grant a bonus equivalent to $300 to every mother at the birth of her tenth child.

Israel, far from worrying about high birth-rate, a problem which troubles most Oriental countries, apparently wishes to increase its population and to make large families popular. The bonus system has been tried in other nations, including Canada, with some degree of success.

Many mothers, physically and financially burdened by large families, would doubtless prefer any government subsidy to be granted at the birth of each child. Families of ten or more are less common than they once were.

The expedition would have been directed by Admiral Richard E. Byrd, our greatest explorer and brother of Senator Harry Byrd. Enough said!

If economy is the issue, how come that countries which are accepting American money under the Marshall Plan have the cash to spend on it? For instance, a joint Norwegian-British-Swedish scientific expedition to Antarctica is being planned for 1950-52. The departure date is November, 1949. The Norwegian government, Norwegian Geographical Society, and the Whaling Association are cooperating in this expedition; Swedish and British scientists are participating.

A French Antarctic expedition, which heretofore failed to establish a meteorological station, will attempt the accomplishment of this mission during 1950.

Great Britain maintains at present five bases within the Falkland Islands dependencies. These bases include one on Deception Island, in the South Shetlands, occupied by five men; one on Hope Bay, occupied by nine men; one on Stonington Island occupied by 11 men; one on the Argentine Islands, occupied by four men; and one on Signy Island, in the South Orkneys, occupied by four men.

The bases are maintained primarily for meteorological purposes. It is customary for an annual routine inspection to be made of these bases during the Antarctic Summer by the governor of the Falkland Islands. The bases are then reprovvisioned and their personnel relieved. Consequently, it may be expected that these operations by the British will occur during 1950.

The Argentine government maintains a meteorological observatory on Laurie Island in the South Orkneys. There are about 15 men there, and each year during the Antarctic Summer, a transport, a tanker, and an auxiliary vessel or two of the Argentine navy visit this base to reprovvision it and to relieve its personnel. ### Treatments Used in Epilepsy

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

THOUGH epilepsy is one of the oldest diseases known to mankind, it still presents a major medical problem. Despite a great deal of recent research, we still have little clue to its cause and no cure which will banish it completely, though with proper treatment it can be controlled.

In general, there are two types of epilepsy, one known as grand mal, the other as petit mal. In the first, there is loss of consciousness, together with convulsions. In the second, there are no convulsions, and the loss of consciousness lasts for only a few moments at a time.

Making Diagnosis

Electrical tracings of the brain waves not only help in making a diagnosis of epilepsy, but in determining the type of disorder present and in checking treatment after it is begun.

One drug for the petit mal cases is known as trimethadione. It seems to control the attacks in about one-third of the cases.

Another drug used is called paraldehyde and it may be employed in those cases which have not responded to the trimethadione.

Damaging Effect

Both of these drugs may have some damaging effect on the bone marrow where the blood cells are made in the body. Hence, when the drugs are used, it is important that the number of cells in the blood be determined at regular intervals.

It may be helpful also to use phenobarbital, a drug which quiets the nervous system in all of these cases. Phenobarbital is especially valuable in controlling grand mal attacks.

Still another drug which is useful both for grand mal and petit mal epilepsy is called phenytoin. Of 30 patients with grand mal attacks, 20 were improved, and of 9 with petit mal attacks, 7 were improved. Reactions to this drug may occur, such as thickening of the gums, incoordination, and skin rash, but it does not seem to have any damaging effect on the blood-forming organs.

Epilepsy in Children

What is known as the ketogenic diet may be helpful in epilepsy in children. This diet, which is rich in fat, reduces the amount of alkaline in the blood and tissues.

Anyone with epilepsy should, of course, be under the care of a doctor. Drugs used for this disease can be dangerous if taken without direction. Moreover, that which will benefit one type may only serve to make the other worse. Thus, only an expert is able to decide the best treatment in each case.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

F. W.: Please tell me what causes jaundice.

Answer: Jaundice is not a disease in itself, but merely a symptom of a disease, and is due to the accumulation of bile pigment in the blood. This may result from many causes, such as a tumor of the liver, to a condition known as cirrhosis of the liver, or to the presence of a stone in the bile duct which obstructs the flow of the bile. Some infections of the liver also cause jaundice. In blood diseases which are characterized by destruction of the blood cells, jaundice occurs.

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

YOU COULDN'T go on being perennial guests Terry told herself, charming adjuncts to someone else's lavish hospitality; you couldn't go on being as decorative and parasitic as the orchids she had seen blooming, with a baby. Babies weren't invited to make dinner conversation, take a hand at contract, play a set of tennis, dance with the difficult business partner. Babies didn't fit into the picture at all.

What was the ideal marriage? Companionship as well as passion, sobriety as well as laughter, a community of tastes, of beliefs and of ambition—a gradual, steady, building of something that would last.

She thought. We have a community of tastes, none of which we can satisfy. As for beliefs, she did not know what she or Chris believed. As for companionship, she had thought they shared it, but now she did not know. Companionship in a hotel suite, a country estate, a private South Sea island was one thing; it would be quite another in a cramped furnished room, a matchbox house in an ugly suburb, or—what had Chris said?—a cold-water flat.

If one of them had been different . . .

Her head ached violently, her thoughts spun in circles. She experienced a blinding contempt, more depleting than anything she had ever known; contempt of herself, shameful and sickening, contempt for Chris, with whom she had fallen in love; contempt, for the first time, for Mark Austin, whom she had loved for over twenty years, who had been the most generous the most wonderful, the most admirable of parents.

She could not weep for herself, but she could weep for Chris and for her father.

Much later the telephone rang and she answered it with an effort. She must have been crying for a long time, and then fallen asleep briefly. Her voice was hoarse with tears, her eyes hurt and were swollen, her throat felt raw and her head was a separate misery.

"Yes . . ."

"Terry? Is that you, Terry?" She cleared her throat. "Yes," she said. "Mrs. Cotter?"

She recognized the light, hurried voice of the older woman, who had been one of her father's most guests. He was lavish in his entertainment of the Americans who came his way.

Terry thought. The dinner engagement is off, and felt a pang of terror wholly out of proportion to the occasion.

Audrey Cotter asked, "Is your husband there?"

"Why, no," Terry answered. "He's gone out, but he'll be back soon. Why?"

She waited, trembling.

"Nothing . . . except I thought I'd have a word with you alone if possible. We're going down to Southampton tomorrow. Bill and I were talking about it. The staff has gone on ahead to open the house. These houses," said Mrs.

Cotter in despair, "open one, close the other . . ."

A place in Asheville, a villa in Florida, the Long Island cottage, the Chicago apartment . . .

She added, "Have you any plans, Terry?"

"Why, no, not at the moment. I had promised one of two people—but then," she added, and found herself laughing quite naturally, "I up and married. We're going to Chris' home in the Islands of course, but we haven't decided when. Honestly, we haven't had time."

"Would it be too deadly," asked Audrey Cotter, "if you came down to us? We'd love it. Bill's so restless, you've no idea what happens to a man when he retires. It's dreadful. Terry, I hardly dare ask it, but this is our second season on Long Island, we don't know many people. Will it be too deadly for you with a couple of old fogies?"

They didn't know a great many people. They would like to. Terry Austin, Chris Russell, drawing cards separately or together. Terry's mouth was a straight red line. This was the way she had to play it. All right, she would. And close to the chest.

She said vaguely, "I'm sure we'd love it, but I don't know what Chris has in mind for the next few weeks or so."

Mrs. Cotter said eagerly, "Oh, a real visit. Terry—not just a week. I spoke to Bill and he said I was crazy, that you'd be off on a honeymoon somewhere."

"Officially, we have been," said Terry, "and we haven't looked ahead for a day. There is no sense in getting an apartment, when we may go to Hawaii at any moment. And we can't keep the hotel suite, they just won't let you any more. My trunk are all stored at my friend's, Helen Lannis, and I've never even asked Chris where his things are."

Mrs. Cotter found it very romantic and said so. She added, "Well, talk it over with him, dear, and then tonight perhaps we can persuade you."

Terry hung up. She went into the bathroom to bathe her eyes, to get under a stinging shower. She thought. Well, it begins. So far, so good.

The Cotter place, extravagantly built in the early twenties, had been designed with costly simplicity. The house, slightly bigger than a barn, was a wooden structure which sprawled in all directions, the bedrooms very large and en suite, and the dining room so immense that it was small wonder the Cotters liked entertaining, whether they themselves were or not. The living room was vast and there was the customary play rooms and powder rooms, telephone nooks and far-flung porches. One of the features of the house was a mammoth bar and, in the cellar, the wine bins, as the original owners, keenly aware of Prohibition, had seen to it that no wine of theirs would ever taste of the cork.

This cozy dwelling was called the Cottage, and its shingles had weathered to a pleasant silver gray.

There was a garden, informal, and another garden, formal, and then a private path to a private beach, ruffled into arching dunes and slipping down to the ocean, which ate at the sands steadily by day and by night.

The Cotters were nice people; they were also dull, pleasant, anxious to please, and friendly. Audrey was round as an apple, no matter what she did about her diet and no matter how her dressmaker pleaded. She was firmly laced, her bosom was ample and high. Her hair was probably gray and, improbably, chestnut. She had large hazel eyes, a button mouth and the skin of a child. Terry liked her very much; and she liked Bill Cotter, who suffered from boredom, hypertension and the inferiority complex of the self-made man, which sometimes expressed itself in tempers and arrogance. But he was a good sort.

There were no children, which had saddened these two for the thirty-odd years of their marriage.

On the first evening, after they had driven down, seen the house, been told about the hurricanes, and had happened to it and how Bill had picked it up for a song, Chris inquired:

"What does Cotter do?"

He was tying his tie and looking in the mirror. The big room was all maple, hand-blocked linen and bowls of roses. The windows were open, the air cool and fresh, smelling of roses and salt.

"Nothing now," Terry answered. She was opening a clothes closet. Her frocks hung there, some had been whisked away to be pressed. She was thinking. They'll do; they'll have to. She had taken what she needed for the country from the luggage at Helen's, explaining, "We aren't going to keep the hotel suite, we can't, they won't permit us. Darling, if I may leave this stuff here for a time . . ."

Helen had asked, "But haven't you any plans?"

"We're going to the Islands," Terry had told her, "but not, I think, until autumn. I've promised people . . ." She let her voice trail off and then added, "After these duty visits are over, perhaps we'll go out and stay on the Coast before sailing."

Now she took down a plain white dinner frock, quite unrelieved. It was fortunate that she had always preferred line and material to anything else in clothes. No extremes, no doodads. She could wear something a hundred times and no one would remember it. For the country old tweed, worn to a soft blur, were always the best; and for warmer weather her wide full cotton skirts and embroidered blouses, as these were timeless. A faded now in the States but routine uniform back home.

Chris asked, "Cotter does nothing? He certainly does it more profitably than I can."

My New York

By MEL HEIMER

Mel Heimer

NEW YORK—When you see the workers come sifting out of the subway pits and the train terminals in the morning, you feel that nature and the elements have lost. The sun and the damp air have surged incessantly through and over the city—and yet the workers are starched and bathed and clean as they come out into the streets.

In a way, they are spitting in the eye of nature; the girls are carefully and fetchingly put together with the help of curlers and girdles, and the men are spotless in white shirts, shaves and pressed pants.

The city folk are hard to beat down. "Make me wilt," they defy the hot morning. They eye the hot morning with calm and indifference. "Make me wilt," they say, and the hot morning retreats strategically to study the situation.

However, even as the city folk are marching briskly along Fifth avenue to their desks, the enemy is being abetted on the rear flank. To the south, hovering over the town like a dark angel, is a massive thunder cloud, and as you look, it mushrooms swiftly north and begins to cover cosmopolis.

The city folk look up, uncertainly, and pick up their tempo like a boat crew stepping up the beat. Across town go some and up and downtown go others, and here and there an umbrella pops open like a black toadstool springing up from a box.

But these are false alarms. The streets remain dry and dusty, and the wind comes in little gusts and flicks a piece of paper here and there. The men's trousers flap against their legs and the women reach up to their hats as if they were feeling for light switches in the night.

THEN THE THUNDER CLOUD IS OVER THE CITY and blanketing it and the town is gloomy as in the early night, although this is morning. When the thunder clouds come in the suburbs and the little towns, there is a great sense of desolation and emptiness, of the fields and the trees, lonely and patient, waiting for the rains to come—but in the city it is different.

The city becomes threatening and eerie. The neon signs of the restaurants and the saloons glow menacingly through the murk. It is only a rainstorm and you can tell from the way it approaches that it will be over and done with in no time—but it is frightening. The buildings loom against the dark sky. If the end of the world comes in our times, this is how you imagine it will be.

Then the first drop comes, big and impudent as it splashes against the dirty sidewalk. The city folk are caught; they have not quite made it to the office and they are not going to. They run, but the second and the third drops chase after them, and then the heavens open.

It is as if someone unfurled a half-open awning and the water spilled over the side and down. In a matter of moments, the gutters are alive with swirling water, cool and muddy and angrily chasing its tail to nowhere.

The dark sky lifts a little, but its complexion has become leaden and the rain keeps up its incessant drumming. The city folk huddle under restaurant awnings; now and then one makes a desperate break out into the downpour and up the block, but he is gone only a few feet before the drops have picked up his freshly-pressed suit by the scruff of the neck and shaken it into shapelessness.

"Make me wilt," they have defied the hot morning, and now, with some help, he is complying.

NOW THE RAIN COMES ALMOST

Answer: Jaundice is not a disease in itself, but merely a symptom of a disease, and is due to the accumulation of bile pigment in the blood. This may result from many causes, such as a tumor of the liver, to a condition known as cirrhosis of the liver, or to the presence of a stone in the bile duct which obstructs the flow of the bile. Some infections of the liver also cause jaundice. In blood diseases which are characterized by destruction of the blood cells, jaundice occurs.

Looking Back In Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

Mrs. Charles G. Shulze of 316 South Court street returned home Friday following several weeks of vacationing in Vermont and in Canada.

Pickaway County office-seekers were notified today that it is against the law to post political signs and posters on fences, poles or trees along Ohio's highways.

Mrs. John Wolford of Pickaway Township was a guest in the home of Mrs. E. O. Crites, Friday.

TEN YEARS AGO

Mrs. W. B. Cady of South Scioto street left Friday to attend the annual homecoming of the Masonic Home in Springfield.

John Ammer of 141 Pleasant street was televised Thursday in the General Electric studio at New York World's Fair.

Misses Gertrude and Ethel Steele visited their sister, Coribel Steele, in Westerville today.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock, when the sun was shining brightly, the crescent moon and one star were plainly seen in the western heavens.

Genevieve List, 14, suffered a fractured right ankle Monday when a cow kicked her as she was milking.

Try, Stop Me

One of America's great newspapermen wrote a special story for Christmas morning a few years ago. He poured his heart into the copy, finished it in the happy glow of a job well done, and phoned his managing editor, "Say, I'm really proud of this piece. It's hokum but it's the best thing I've done in a year."

The writer gave his piece to a trusted messenger, trimmed

CHAPTER SEVENTEEN

YOU COULDN'T go on being perennial guests Terry told herself, charming adjuncts to someone else's hospitality; you couldn't go on being as decorative and parasitic as the orchids she had seen blooming, with a baby. Babies weren't invited to make dinner conversation, take a hand at contract, play a set of tennis, dance with the difficult business partner. Babies didn't fit into the picture at all.

What was the ideal marriage? Companionship as well as passion, sobriety as well as laughter, a community of tastes, of beliefs and of ambition—a gradual, steady, building of something that would last.

She thought, We have a community of tastes, none of which we can satisfy. As for beliefs, she did not know what she or Chris believed. As for companionship, she had thought they shared it, but now she did not know. Companionship in a hotel suite, a country estate, a private South Sea island was one thing; it would be quite another in a cramped furnished room, a matchbox house in an ugly suburb, or—what had Chris said?—a cold-water flat.

If one of them had been different . . .

Her head ached violently, her thoughts spun in circles. She experienced a blinding contempt, more depleting than anything she had ever known; contempt of herself, shameful and sickening, contempt for Chris, with whom she had fallen in love; contempt, for the first time, for Mark Austin, whom she had loved for over twenty years, who had been the most generous, the most wonderful, the most admirable of parents.

She could not weep for herself, but she could weep for Chris and for her father.

Much later the telephone rang and she answered it with an effort. She must have been crying for a long time, and then fallen asleep briefly. He voice was hoarse with tears, her eyes hurt and were swollen, her throat felt raw and her head was a separate misery.

"Yes . . ."

"Terry? Is that you, Terry?"

She cleared her throat. "Yes," she said. "Mrs. Cotter?"

She recognized the light, hurrying voice of the older woman, who had been one of her father's many guests. He was lavish in his entertainment of the Americans who came his way.

Terry thought. The dinner engagement is off, and felt a pang of terror wholly out of proportion to the occasion.

Audrey Cotter asked, "Is your husband there?"

"Why, no," Terry answered, "he's gone out, but he'll be back soon. Why?"

She waited, trembling.

"Nothing . . . except I thought I'd have a word with you alone if possible. We're going down to Southampton tomorrow. Bill and I were talking about it. The staff has gone on ahead to open the house. These houses," said M. S.

Cotter in despair, "open one, close the other . . ."

A place in Asheville, a villa in Florida, the Long Island cottage, the Chicago apartment . . .

She added, "Have you any plans, Terry?"

"Why, no, not at the moment. I had promised one of two people—but then," she added, and found herself laughing quite naturally, "I up and married. We're going to Chris' home in the Islands of course, but we haven't decided when. Honestly, we haven't had time."

"Would it be too deadly," asked Audrey Cotter, "if you came down to us? We'd love it. Bill's so restless, you've no idea what happens to a man when he retires. It's dreadful. Terry, I hardly dare ask it, but this is our second season on Long Island, we don't know many people. Will it be too deadly for you with a couple of old fogies?"

They didn't know a great many people. They would like to. Terry Austin, Chris Russell, drawing cards separately or together. Terry's mouth was a straight red line. This was the way she had to play it. All right, she would. And close to the chest.

She said vaguely, "I'm sure we'd love it, but I don't know what Chris has in mind for the next few weeks or so."

Mrs. Cotter said eagerly, "Oh, a real visit, Terry—not just a week. I spoke to Bill and he said I was crazy, that you'd be off on a honeymoon somewhere."

"Officially, we have been," said Terry, "and we haven't looked ahead for a day. There is no sense in getting an apartment, when we may go to Hawaii at any moment. And we can't keep the hotel suite, they just won't let you any more. My trunks are all stored at my friend's, Helen Lannis, and I've never even asked Chris where his things are."

Mrs. Cotter found it very romantic and said so. She added, "Well, talk it over with him, dear, and then tonight perhaps we can persuade you."

Terry hung up. She went into the bathroom to bathe her eyes, to get under a stinging shower. She thought, Well, it begins. So far, so good.

The Cotter place, extravagantly built in the early twenties, had been designed with costly simplicity. The house, slightly bigger than a barn, was a wooden structure which sprawled in all directions, the bedrooms very large and en suite, and the dining room so immense that it was small wonder the Cotters liked entertaining, whether they themselves were or not. The living room was vast and there was the customary play rooms and powder rooms, telephone nooks and far-flung porches. One of the features of the house was a mammoth bar and, in the cellar, the wine bins, as the original owners, keenly aware of Prohibition, had seen to it that no wine of theirs would ever taste of the cork.

Search for the messenger was fruitless. He didn't turn up, in fact, until late Dec. 26. "Oh, that story you gave me the other night," he recalled when the writer started shouting at him. "It sure was good. I started reading it on the way downtown, and it made me cry so, I took it home and read it to my wife for a Christmas present."

Kiernan's ONE MAN'S OPINION

Congratulations have been pouring in on the new wizard of the Klan. . . mostly night letters.

There were 32 telegrams from sheet and pillow case manufacturers and four from men who weave luncheon cloths with holes for dark glasses. Napkins with six fingers are included.

So far the revival of the Klan hasn't spread north. It's been too hot this Summer for even a thin sheet.

But fine weather is in prospect for the Fall. Steel and auto workers are already planning long walks.

Mr. Murray and Mr. Reuther have announced that whatever happens is the responsibility of somebody else. Or as they used to say of Bruce Woodcock, England's horizontal champion: "If anybody gets rough, it won't be him."

But let it be said to the credit of the CIO's top men that they were not taken by surprise when workers voted "yes" when asked "would you like another raise and a pension?"

NEW YORK—When you see the workers come sitting out of the subway pits and the train terminals in the morning, you feel that nature and the elements have lost. The sun and the damp air have surged incessantly through and over the city—and yet the workers are stretched and bathed and clean as they come out into the streets.

In a way, they are spitting in the eye of nature; the girls are carefully and fetchingly put together with the help of curlers and girdles, and the men are spotless in white shirts, shaves and pressed pants.

The city folk are hard to beat down. "Make me wilt," they defy the hot morning. They eye the hot morning with calm and indifference. "Make me wilt," they say, and the hot morning retreats strategically to study the situation.

However, even as the city folk are marching briskly along Fifth avenue to their desks, the enemy is being abetted on the rear flank. To the south, hovering over the town like a dark angel, is a massive thunder cloud, and as you look, it mushrooms swiftly north and begins to cover cosmopolis.

The city folk look up, uncertainly, and pick up their tempo like a boat crew stepping up the beat. Across town go some and up and downtown go others, and here and there an umbrella pops open like a black toadstool springing up from a box.

But these are false alarms. The streets remain dry and dusty, and the wind comes in little gusts and flicks a piece of paper here and there. The men's trousers flap against their legs and the women reach up to their hats as if they were feeling for light switches in the night.

THEN THE THUNDER CLOUD IS OVER THE CITY and blanketing it and the town is gloomy as in the early night, although this is morning. When the thunder clouds come in the suburbs and the little towns, there is a great sense of desolation and emptiness, of the fields and the trees, lonely and patient, waiting for the rains to come—but in the city it is different.

The city becomes threatening and eerie. The neon signs of the restaurants and the saloons glow menacingly through the murk. It is only a rainstorm and you can tell from the way it approaches that it will be over and done with in no time—but it is frightening. The buildings loom against the dark sky. If the end of the world comes in our times, this is how you imagine it will be.

Then the first drop comes, big and impudent as it splashes against the dirty sidewalk. The city folk are caught; they have not quite made it to the office and they are not going to. They run, but the second and the third drops chase after them, and then the heavens open.

It is as if someone unfurled a half-open awning and the water spilled over the side and down. In a matter of moments, the gutters are alive with swirling water, cool and muddy and angrily chasing its tail to nowhere.

The dark sky lifts a little, but its complexion has become leaden and the rain keeps up its incessant drumming. The city folk huddle under restaurant awnings; now and then one makes a desperate break out into the downpour and up the block, but he is gone only a few feet before the drops have picked up his freshly-pressed suit by the scruff of the neck and shaken it into shapelessness.

"Make me wilt," they have defied the hot morning, and now, with some help, he is complying.

NOW THE RAIN COMES ALMOST WITH A SCREAM: it hammers on the hotel marquees and against the panes of the high buildings and, over and over, on the glistening sidewalk. In these last few weeks, when it has been hot, you have toyed with the idea that it never will be cool again, that the earth is slowly burning to a cinder and this is the start of it.

Now, as the rain comes with its increased fury, you toy with the idea that the Forty Days are coming again, that it will never end and that the place to be is atop the Empire State building. Rain in the city can be a wonderful thing—a spring drizzle on Park avenue in the night can fill the heart beyond imagination—but this dark and angry morning rain is only sinister.

For a few minutes, the city folk are caught and held under the restaurant awnings. Only the truckmen are at work; the rain slides through the hairs on their bare arms as they stomp stolidly through the downpour, pushing boxes and hauling barrels.

Men from a soap company's truck come out of one restaurant carrying little tin cans of meat fats. "Is THAT what I wash my face with?" a bookish gentleman in a gabardine suit spotted with rain asks in dismay. The truckman nods solemnly. But the colloquy goes no further. As suddenly as it began, the rain ends. The sky lifts, and from under the awnings the city folk come soggy back onto the sidewalks and head slowly for their desks again. The morning grows hot again and the streets are steamy and, this time, nature and the elements have won.

Youth Canteen Members Engaged In Redecorating Their Clubrooms Here

Paint Brushes Now Flying

If Circleville Youth Canteen isn't the most attractive youth canteen in Central Ohio, only because they are now in the process of redecorating the place themselves.

The large rooms over First National Bank this week are a clutter of paint buckets and brushes as members of Youth Canteen work to repaint and re-decorate the recreation spot.

Work started first on the "Rhythm Room" of the canteen, the largest room where the youngsters have their juke box, give their square dances and have their big parties.

Each of the rooms has a decorating committee with an adult supervisor. Now working on the "Rhythm Room" are Jeannine Bell, Barbara Neff, Charlotte Rader, Marjorie Thornton, Robert Workman, Jack Weidinger, Harold Huffer, Wayne Smith, Don Skinner, John Anderson, Gary Wilson, and Charles Waple. Adult supervisor is Vernon Blake.

The girls were washing wood-work and windows, cleaning the shutters and getting the room ready for the painters. The boys were mixing paint and testing out brushes. Harold Pontius supervised this job.

Mrs. Walter Heine, house committee chairman, said she hopes to have the redecorating job done in three weeks. According to Mrs. Heine, the decorators were undertaking the task on "faith and muscle." She seemed to have lot of faith herself and was looking forward to the Open House the canteen plans to have for its 250 members.

The parents association of the canteen helps the youngsters raise money for their organization. Officers of the parents' association are: President, Harold Pontius; vice-president, Mrs. James I. Smith; secretary, Mrs. Wayne Leist; and treasurer, Mrs. Myra Mader.

Mrs. Fred Boggs is adult hostess for the canteen.

After the "Rhythm Room" is completely redecorated, another committee will take over the work of the "Blue Room" which is the lounge or reading room and is furnished with tables, lamps and chairs.

The Varsity Room probably will be the last room to undergo the repaint job. Booths and soft drink bar there will get a new coat of paint as will walls and woodwork.

Magic Sewing Club Meets

Magic Sewing Club met in the home of Mrs. Gail Wolf of Pleasant street. During the business session, a birthday gift was presented to Mrs. Gladden Troutman.

Winners of the evening's contests were Mrs. Paul Turner and Mrs. Roger Lozier. A dessert course was served from small tables in the living room.

A man's tobacco pouch, cleaned of all the tobacco, makes a good make-up bag for the purse. If the pouch happens to be oil-skin it's really a prize. A wet make-up sponge or damp washcloth can be conveniently carried in a purse when tucked safely into this water-proof container.

Psalms Exalts the Word of God

HIS STATUTES ARE RIGHT, REJOICING THE HEART

Scripture—Psalms 19:7-14, 105, 119.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

TO LEAD good lives—to keep to moral law—that is the task of everyone in the world. Laws and customs vary in different countries, but there are moral laws which are the same in every land and every religion—to love God with all your heart and your neighbor as yourself.

If everyone tried to honestly live up to these simple stated rules, which Jesus said were the two most important in the law, how changed the world would be! Today's lesson the teachings of our Bibles exalted. The Lord's statutes are perfect, converting the soul, says the psalmist.

In last week's lesson we had assigned the first six verses of Psalm 19. Now we have the remainder of the Psalm:

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul, the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple.

"The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes.

"The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever: the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

"More to be desired are they than gold: moreover, by them is Thy servant warned, and in keeping of them there is great reward."

David had reason to know the truth of this latter part of his Psalm, for he was indeed unhappy—heartbroken—when he broke the Lord's laws, and only knew peace of mind when he acknowledged his fault and felt he was forgiven.

The Psalm continues: "Who can understand and his errors? Cleanse Thou me from secret faults.

"Keep back Thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression.

"Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer."

Capt. Jack Clifton, commander of the local unit, has written that the men arrived in the Army camp by train last Sunday afternoon and sat down to their first Army chow this year.

He said the meal consisted of steak, French fries, ice cream and fresh peaches.

And most of this week has been peaches and cream for the local men, Clifton added, as they adjust themselves back into the Army way of life.

HOWEVER, he said, next week is to be the exact reverse. Mock maneuvers are planned, he said, along with overnight hikes and bivouacs and intensified tactical courses.

Cpl. Jack Morgan, one of the three-man work detail which left last Thursday to ready camp for the unit, was flown back to Circleville Monday because of the serious illness of his sister, Mrs. Jack Smallwood.

Psalmist Exalts the Word of God

HIS STATUTES ARE RIGHT, REJOICING THE HEART

Scripture—Psalms 19:7-14, 105, 119.

By NEWMAN CAMPBELL

TO LEAD good lives—to keep the moral law—that is the task of everyone in the world. Laws and customs vary in different countries, but there are moral laws which are the same in every land and every religion—to love God with all your heart and your neighbor as yourself.

If everyone tried to honestly live up to these simple stated rules, which Jesus said were the two most important in the law, how changed the world would be! In today's lesson the teachings of our Bible are exalted. The Lord's statutes are perfect, converting the soul, says the psalmist.

In last week's lesson we had assigned the first six verses of Psalm 19. Now we have the remainder of the Psalm:

"The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul; the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple."

"The statutes of the Lord are right, rejoicing the heart; the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes."

"The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever; the judgments of the Lord are true and righteous altogether."

"More to be desired are they than gold, more precious than silver; they are Thy servant's reward, and in keeping of them there is great reward."

David had reason to know the truth of this latter part of his Psalm, for he was indeed unhappy—heartbroken—when he broke the Lord's laws, and only knew peace of mind when he acknowledged his fault and felt he was forgiven.

The Psalm continues: "Who can understand his errors? Cleanse Thou me from secret faults."

"Keep back Thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me; then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression."

"Let the words of my mouth, and the meditation of my heart, be acceptable in Thy sight, O Lord, my strength, and my redeemer."

Books of science must change, as knowledge advances. History books are revised because we learn more of historical movements and factors. But the moral laws—as set forth in the Bible—are sure. They never change. We may sin from ignorance and from "hidden" offenses, and be forgiven. Sins that are committed willfully and with defiance, are not so easily pardoned. David prayed to be restrained from such desperate acts, beseeching God that the words of his mouth and the meditations of his heart might be found acceptable in His sight. Wouldn't it be marvelous to so live that we could feel that God would approve of all our acts—even of your thoughts?

The 119th Psalm begins, as Jesus' Sermon on the Mount does, with the word "Blessed." "Blessed are the undefiled in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord."

"Blessed are they that keep His testimonies, and that seek Him with the whole heart."

"Wherewithal shall a young man cleanse his way? By taking heed thereto according to Thy word."

"With my whole heart have I sought Thee; Oh let me not wander from Thy commandments."

"Thy word is a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path," the psalmist says, and pleads, for deliverance from his enemies and those that persecute him. He finds "great peace have they which love Thy law and nothing shall offend them."

The last division of this Psalm is a cry for understanding of God's law.

"O Lord, give me understanding, according to Thy word... My lips shall utter praise when Thou hast taught me Thy statutes... My tongue shall speak of Thy word: for all Thy commandments are righteousness."

His final confession is: "I have gone astray like a lost sheep; seek Thy servant, for I do not forget Thy commandments."

All of us—young and old—rich and poor—have gone astray many times, but we too, can strive to keep God's moral laws and hope that the words of our mouths and meditations of our hearts will be acceptable in His sight.

AKRON TO SEE EXHIBITION

'New' New York Gridders Ready For Brownie Test

AKRON, Aug. 26.—The Cleveland Browns, rulers of the All-America Football Conference, square off against the "new" New York Yankees tonight in their final tune-up before the season opens Sept. 5.

It was in the Rubber Bowl against the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1946 that the Clevelanders started their three-year reign as champs of the AAF.

Although the Dodger football club has disbanded, many of its players are now employed by the Yankees, who have completely remodeled their squad. With their "new" team, the Yanks have recorded two exhibition victories over Baltimore, 28-14, and 5-0, in which Dan Pannella, rookie quarterback from Boston college, was their star.

MISSING FROM THE YANKEES' lineup is Orval "Spec" Sanders, around whom the whole team revolved for the first three years of play in the All-America Conference.

Also starting in the backfield for the Gotham City eleven this year are Fullback Mickey Colmer and Halfback Claude "Bud" Young, speedster from Illinois who played fullback for the 1948 Yankees.

Colmer was outstanding with a weak line operating in front of him with the old Dodgers.

Yankee Coach Norman "Red" Strader also has veteran ends, Bruce Alford and Jack Russell, along with Paul Cleary, who was with the team last year, and Barney Poole of the Army and Mississippi.

The biggest aids on the line probably will be in Martin Ruby, with Brooklyn for three years, and Al Mastrangeli, rookie from Illinois.

Although the contest is an exhibition, the two teams will be giving their all in an effort to emerge victorious. The two clubs have been bitter rivals for the last three years, and only in 1948, when the Yanks virtually fell apart, did the Clevelanders have little trouble in defeating the New Yorkers.

TONIGHT'S game will be more than just another game for three members of the Browns. Those three, names unknown, will be chopped from the roster within a week after tonight's contest, since the Cleveland club now has 35 players. The AAF limit is 32.

Except for Marion Motley, Lou Groza and Bob Gaudin, the Browns are in good shape. The trio suffered minor injuries against the San Francisco 49ers last week and may see only limited duty tonight.

Both teams now have one loss. The winner of the Friday match will take the tourney title.

TINKS OPENED scoring in the third frame of its match against Baltimore in the opener with a single tally, but was tied in the fourth when Baltimore pushed in a single.

Leon Sims doubled in the last inning of the match and scored the winning run when Bill Ankrum poked out a safety. Tink Hyster Stillman Morrison was credited with the win, allowing only three hits.

The Tinkers scored two runs in the second and fifth stanzas of the final match to square off in standings with Gahanna.

Lee Siegwald and Don Valentine rapped out two basers in the nightcap match, and Dick Wellington was credited with the win. He allowed only three hits also.

Line scores of the Tink twin follow:

Tinks	001	000	1-2 8 0
Balti.	000	100	0-1 3 0
Gahanna	000	000	0-0 3 1
Tinks	020	020	x-4 12 0

New Bleachers Eyed For Local Football Games

A plan to purchase new bleachers for the football field is being kicked around verbally by Circleville high school's Athletic Association.

According to reports, the athletic panel is considering the purchase of portable steel bleachers to be placed on the north side of the field this season.

J. Wray Henry, principal of the high school and chairman of the association, said that at present the panel is discussing an 800 to 900 seat bleachers, ranging in price between $3,000 and $4,000.

Henry explained that the association probably will have to ask for funds for the new seating from local organizations and by subscription.

He said the new bleachers would give visiting fans more than a 50-50 chance at sitting down this season.

He explained that Pickaway County Agricultural Society will again rent its portable bleachers to the school this year. The Society's bleachers will seat from 1,200 to 1,500 fans, he said, meaning that if the new bleachers are obtained no one should have to stand this season.

$1,200 Pace To Open Fair

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 26.—A $1,200, 26-Pace race will open the harness racing programs at the Canfield Fairgrounds here Sept. 1.

Four harness racing sessions, billed as the feature of the Canfield Fair, are scheduled from opening day until the fair ends Labor Day.

Bert Millikin, superintendent, announced he has already received over 100 entries.

Chester Hedges Of Ashville Wins Trap Prize; Big Grand Starts

Chester Hedges, shotgun expert of nearby Ashville, Friday morning was sitting at the top of one of the many heaps at the trapshooting tournament being held in Vandallia, near Dayton.

Hedges, shooting from the 20-yard stripe chalked up 98 out of 100 clay pigeons. He had competed against a field of 1,559 other shooters in the handicap event. Five other men shot 98s, but from other yardage stripes.

But Friday was to be the big day.

Some 1,700 scattergun toters were lining up on the firing line for the biggest prize of all—the Grand American Handicap.

This shotgun-shooter's prize plum never has been won by the same man twice. Generally, some unknown collects the crown. Few of the "great" shotgun artists ever won this event.

For instance, Joe Heistand of Hillsboro, generally conceded to be the greatest shotgun master of them all, has won every other trapshoot event at least twice—but not the Grand American even once.

THIS HANDICAP event places shooters on yardage stripes according to their abilities. Starting at the 16-yard stripe, they are staggered back from the traps yard-by-yard until—like Heistand, himself—shooting will be done from the clubhouse steps.

Ohmer Webb, 41-year-old Washington, D. C., contractor, pocketed almost $5,000 today for racking up the fourth perfect score in 50 years in the preliminary handicap yesterday.

Webb powdered 100 targets at 19 yards to edge Roger Dell, 51, of Fergus Falls, Minn., who missed his sixth pigeon at 20 yards. Dell is considered one of the northwest's crack duck shots.

Webb, who modestly claimed he never shot better than 97 before, is competing in his second national trapshoot.

Herb Parsons, 41, of Somerville, Tenn., took the professional championship with 98 at 23 yards. Second were Don Flewelling of Harvey, Ill., and Thomas R. Frye of Findlay, with 94 at 23 yards.

A three-way deadlock with 96 finished the women's event. Joan Plueger of North Miami, Fla.; Frances King of Atlanta, Ga.; and Carolyn Elliott of Philadelphia were tied.

The tie broke when Miss King shattered 49 of 50 in a shootoff for the title. Miss Elliott took second and Miss Plueger third.

Dr. O. T. Dean, 71, of Seattle defeated Dr. Byron Nixon of Farmland, Ind., with 24 targets broken in a shootoff for the Sports-a-Field trophy. They had tied at 96 in the regular try.

Pennsylvania's five-man team lost to Ohio in a shootoff after a 985-of-1000 tie. The Buckeye squad broke 124 of 125 for the title.

"SHE LOOKED good. She was swimming strongly and was in the best of spirits. I wish her all the luck in the world."

Temme went into the water with the Dutch woman for a time and paced her shortly after she left the French coast at Tardighen Beach, two miles east of Cap Gris Nez.

The weather was considered favorable for the would-be champion, with a smooth sea and only a slight wind.

She applied a gallon of grease to her body before wading through the breakers to swimming depth from deserted Tardighen Beach at 2:29 a. m. (EST). Temme feared that the coating may be too thin to protect her against the chill of the waters and will wear off enroute.

Shirley May, questioned by newsmen as to when she will make her much-heralded bid, replied angrily:

"None of your business."

Akron Semipros Book Opener

AKRON, Aug. 26.—The Akron Browns, semipro football league titleholders, are slated to open a 12-game schedule Sept. 11 in Massillon.

The Browns, who began practice sessions yesterday, are trying to book semipro opponents to fill out their season schedule.

Cochell Due To Meet Italian

SEA BRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 26.—Defending Champion Earl Cochell of San Francisco meets Marcello Del Bello of Italy today in the quarter finals of the first annual Sea Bright invitation tennis tournament.

Top-seeded Cochell advanced by beating Arnold Saul of San Diego, Cal., yesterday, 6-3, 11-9, in a tough match. Del Bello, Italia Davis Cupper and third-seeded foreign entry, eliminated Frank Shields of New York, 7-5, 6-4, in the round of 16.

Miami Looming As Grid Power

OXFORD, Aug. 26.—Woody Hayes, starting his first year as Miami university football coach, kept his fingers crossed in hopes that 61 of last year's players would show for an organization session today.

The Redskins start pre-season practice tomorrow, and if Hayes' hopes turn out right, old Miami—with 28 returning lettermen—will have one of its toughest squads in years.

BROWNS NOW OUT OF RACE

Ex-Rapid Robert Slumps;

Yankees Trim Cleveland

NEW YORK, Aug. 26—The Feller that used to be isn't any more, and the Indians that were champs last year, aren't going to be this one.

The 1948 world champions called on their former "stopper" to halt the Cleveland decline in the American League race, but ex-Rapid Robert was not equal to the task.

A teetering New York Yankee outfit steadied itself at Feller's expense by belting the Tribe, 6 to 3. In so doing, Casey Stengel's hospital brigade extended the space between their riddled ranks and the downtrodden Indians to six full games.

Big Johnny Mize, the refugee from the Giants, began to earn his Yankee board by blasting one of Feller's tosses for his first American League round-tripper with one on in the second.

Legal Notice

Capt. Jack Clifton, commander of the local unit, has written that the men arrived in the Army camp by train last Sunday afternoon and sat down to their first Army chow this year.

He said the meal consisted of steak, French fries, ice cream and fresh peaches.

And most of this week has been peaches and cream for the local men, Clifton added, as they adjust themselves back to the Army way of life.

Legal Notice

HOWEVER, he said, next week is to be the exact reverse. Mock maneuvers are planned, he said, along with overnight hikes and bivouacs and intensified tactical courses.

Cpl. Jack Mogan, one of the three-man work detail which left last Thursday to ready camp for the unit, was flown back to Circleville Monday because of the serious illness of his sister, Mrs. Jack Smallwood.

Mogan was flown from the Army camp in an L5-G two-place litter carrier, which landed at Thomas Field, Mogan hitchhiked his way back to camp Wednesday.

Legal Notice

The local guardsmen have been firing the Army's new 57 and 75 mm. recoilless rifles, pieces the size of small cannon which may be fired from the shoulder without ill effect.

Charles Gray, Turney Ross and Gene Richardson Monday completed the administrative details in the company's orderly room, while the remainder of the men and officers cleaned rifles and pistols in preparation for classes.

Mess Sgt. Kenneth White was assigned to cook for the regimental officers mess at the camp.

Legal Notice

The local unit will return to Circleville Sept. 4 following its all-out maneuvers next week, Clifton said.

Vets' Aide Gives Tips On Preparing For NSLI Dividends

Do Nothing Before Next Monday, Plea

Shea Details VA Program

Here are the most important things for World War II veterans to remember when applying for their National Service Life Insurance dividend from the Veterans' Administration, according to James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer.

1—Wait until August 29 (next Monday) before doing anything.

2—See about getting a dividend application form from one of the four sources available—the postoffice, a Veterans Administration office, a Veterans organization service officer, or the office of the local county veterans service officer.

3—Read the first section of the form, which is devoted to instructions, and decide whether procedure is understood. If not, ask the county service officer for help in filling it out correctly. This will mean swifter action on the part of the VA, and a quicker monetary return to the veteran.

4—When filling out the form, be as neat as possible, especially in name spelling and address listing. Be sure to list an address at which mail can be received for the six month period following the date of application.

5—If the veteran does not remember his policy number which is requested on the blank, don't worry about it. The VA wants those numbers for ready reference, but they are not essential. There is also a blank space for veterans to write in their "claim numbers," if any. If a veteran has been issued such a number, he should note the number correctly in space provided—if none was issued, forget it. The VA has the name, rank and serial number of every eligible veteran.

6—Once the application is in the mail, don't worry about how soon payment will be made, and don't use the anticipated amount as a promissory note for personal debts. The VA will have about 17 million veterans' records to check, so individual correspondence will only delay YOUR dividend.

Beneficiaries of deceased veterans who are entitled to a share of the refund need not bother with the form. They will be mailed a check by the VA.

The local office of the county veterans' service officer will be glad to aid veterans in filing for their NSLI refund, and will remain open until 9 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and, if need be, Thursday and Friday, Shea said.

City To Vote On Short Week

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Columbus city council will put on the Nov. 8 ballot a proposal for a 40-hour week for city policemen.

Council President Joseph R. Jones said the ordinance, sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Police, will be passed Sept. 6. The question was originally scheduled to go to the voters without council's action on a petition signed by 15,000 voters. The signatures were gathered by the FOP when council earlier refused to pass the measure.

Patrolmen now work a 48-hour week. Under the proposal they would still work 48 hours, but would receive overtime for the sixth day.

Test Pilot's Tax Status Worries Revenue Experts

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26—Test Pilot Grover Tyler's four-year wartime stay at some of Cleveland's best hotels and apartments is giving the Bureau of Internal Revenue a tax nightmare.

Tyler, a $10,000 a year pilot for United Air Lines in Seattle, came to Cleveland in 1942 to test automatic pilots and other flight instruments for a manufacturing firm.

During his stay, Taylor said he put up at the best hotels and apartments, spent lavishly on military friends and came home one day to find his wife and $36,525 in money and bonds gone.

He tried to salvage as much as he could by claiming income tax deductions amounting to $29,082 for 1942 through 1945.

But Judge C. Rogers Arundell of the United States tax court in Washington has upheld the Bureau of Internal Revenue in its slashing of the deductions to a mere $2,554.

Just how much Taylor has to pay in additional taxes is a complex matter for experts of the federal tax agency.

Medics Give Up Hope For Child

SALEM, Aug. 26—Little Donna Marie Saunders, who has been in a coma for seven months, was to be returned to a Salem hospital today to await a fate which Cleveland physicians say is inevitable.

The seven-year-old child from Lisbon was pronounced incurable by doctors at Cleveland Clinic yesterday after brain x-rays and encephalographs revealed "irreparable" damage to her brain.

The girl was injured Feb. 9 when she was struck by a coal truck near her home. She has been unconscious since that time.

Lima May Lose Bus System

LIMA, Aug. 26—Lima faces the loss of its city bus lines today if transportation officials and councilmen fail to agree on a compromise measure to renew the franchise Sept. 1.

Officials asked the bus drivers to take a ten-cent-an-hour pay reduction and requested permission to boost the fares of the lines. The bus firm also proposed to drop one complete route.

McCall Company Chieftain Dies

DAYTON, Aug. 26—Funeral services will be held Saturday for William S. Robinson, 67, general manager of the McCall Corp., magazine publishers here. The English-born business leader who emigrated through Canada in 1903 died yesterday of cancer in Miami Valley hospital.

Canal Defense Plans Changed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—Defense Department officials said today that Defense Secretary Johnson's sweeping economy order will leave the Panama Canal entirely without fighter plane protection—a change in strategic thinking.

Johnson, in eliminating 135,000 civilian jobs from the Defense Department Wednesday, included Howard Air Force Base in the Canal Zone as one of the 51 installations to be closed down.

Instead of being regarded as vital area which must be defended, the Canal Zone now is considered far "behind the lines" of any possible conflict.

Canton Youth Shares Honors In GM Contest

DETROIT, Aug. 26—Howard Assel of Canton shared top honors today in the 1949 model car competition of the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild, despite a serious mishap when his model was in the final stages of construction.

Dr. George J. Fisher, national Boy Scout commissioner and honorary Guild president presented Assel, an Ohio State university student with a $4,000 university scholarship here last night.

Assel shared first place honors with Elia Russinoff of Detroit, son of a General Motors employee. Contest regulations specify when a GM employee's son qualifies, duplicate awards shall be given, so both boys got scholarships.

The Canton youth told the judges that during the final weeks of preparation, his model fell to the floor, smashing the rear fender fins and the hood line. He met this reverse by altering the design of his fenders and building up the smashed hood with a false, plastic nose.

here after an illness of more than a year.

Active in civic affairs, Robinson also was a director of the McCall Corp., which he joined in 1923 after association with the old Collier Publishing Co. and the Andrew Kellogg Co.

Here's Another Cow-In-Silo Mystery Story

OSCEOLA, Wis., Aug. 26—A frisky young lady with an appropriate name and an urge to squeeze the most out of life is feeling mighty low in Osceola today.

In fact, about 12 feet too low. It all began yesterday when "Snoopy," a 650-pound heifer, wriggled through an opening 20 inches by 24 inches and landed—unhurt—12 feet below on the floor of a silo.

"Snoopy" thereby outwriggled an Oklahoma bovine named "Grady" who squeezed herself into a silo through an opening "about as big as a newspaper page" last Feb. 14. "Grady" was freed two weeks later by a visiting reporter and a bucket of grease.

The Osceola heifer, a pet of 13-year-old Cheriene Lampman, sneaked into a cornfield yesterday and was being chased out by Everett Lampman when she saw the silo opening.

The big squeeze followed. Now Lampman wants to know: "How do I get her out of there?"

Barkeep Cited In Man's Death

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Bar-tender Frank Machese, 21, was held in Columbus city prison for questioning today in connection with the death of Robert Barley of High Point, N. C., yesterday.

Police said Barley suffered a fractured skull during a scuffle at the tavern where Machese worked last Monday and the bartender threw him out.

Mrs. Bolton Likes Vichy

VICHY, Aug. 26—Rep. Frances Bolton, R., (O.), was in Vichy today for medical treatment. She said:

"I feel very much better since I arrived. I don't know yet how long the medical care will last but Vichy is lovely."

Ohio AFL Names All Officers To Retain Positions

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Delegates to the 64th annual convention of the Ohio State Federation of Labor in Columbus were to end their meeting today with the same officers who have served for several years.

Michael J. Lyden of Youngstown was reelected president for his fifteenth term yesterday and Phil Hannah of Columbus was reelected to his eighth term as executive secretary. The vote in both cases was unanimous.

A surprise visitor in the afternoon as Harry O'Reilly of Washington, director of AFL organization, who disclosed AFL membership soon would be comfortably over the eight-million mark. He credited organization in the tobacco and lumber industries with the recent growth.

A reported move to oppose John E. Breidenbach of Dayton as second vice-president apparently was beaten down before it could get started and seven vice-presidents also were reelected without opposition.

AKRON TO SEE EXHIBITION

'New' New York Gridders Ready For Brownie Test

AKRON, Aug. 26 — The Cleveland Browns, rulers of the All-America Football Conference, square off against the "new" New York Yankees tonight in Akron's Rubber Bowl in their final tune-up before the season opens Sept. 5.

It was in the Rubber Bowl against the Brooklyn Dodgers in 1946 that the Clevelanders started their three-year reign as champs of the AAF.

Although the Dodge football club has disbanded, many of its players are now employed by the Yankees, who have completely remodeled their squad. With their "new" team, the Yanks have recorded two exhibition victories over Baltimore, 28-14, and 5-0, in which Dan Panfili, rookie quarterback from Boston College, was their star.

MISSING FROM the Yankees' lineup is Orval "Spec" Sanders, around whom the whole team revolved for the first three years of play in the All-America Conference.

Also starring in the backfield for the Gotham City eleven this year are Fullback Mickey Colmer and Halfback Claude "Buddy" Young, speedster from Illinois who played fullback for the 1948 Yankees.

Colmer was outstanding with a weak line operating in front of him with the old Dodgers.

Yankee Coach Norman "Red" Strader also has veteran ends, Bruce Alford and Jack Russell, along with Paul Cleary, who was with the team last year, and Barney Poole of the Army and Mississippi.

The biggest aids on the line probably will be in Martin Ruby, with Brooklyn for three years, and Al Mastrangeli, rookie from Illinois.

Although the contest is an exhibition, the two teams will be giving their all in an effort to emerge victorious. The two clubs have been bitter rivals for the last three years, and only in 1948, when the Yanks virtually fell apart, did the Clevelanders have little trouble in defeating the New Yorkers.

TONIGHT'S game will be more than just another game for three members of the Browns. Those three, names unknown, will be chopped from the roster within a week after tonight's contest, since the Cleveland club now has 35 players. The AAF limit is 32.

Except for Marion Motley, Lou Groza and Bob Gaudin, the Browns are in good shape. The trio suffered minor injuries against the San Francisco 49ers last week and may see only limited duty tonight.

TINKS OPENED scoring in the third frame of its match against Baltimore in the opener with a single tally, but was tied in the fourth when Baltimore pushed in a single.

Leon Sims doubled in the last inning of the match and scored the winning run when Bill Ankrom poked out a safety. Tink Tyler Stillman Morrison was credited with the win, allowing only three hits.

The Tinkers scored two runs in the second and fifth stanzas of the final match to square off in standings with Gahanna.

Lee Siegwald and Don Valentine rapped out two batters in the nightcap match, and Dick Wellington was credited with the win. He allowed only three hits also.

Line scores of the Tink twin was follow:

Tinks	001	000	1-2 8 0
Balti.	000	100	0-1 3 0

Gahanna	000	000	0-0 3 1
Tinks	020	020	x-4 12 0

New Bleachers Eyed For Local Football Games

A plan to purchase new bleachers for the football field is being kicked around verbally by Circleville high school's Athletic Association.

According to reports, the athletic panel is considering the purchase of portable steel bleachers to be placed on the north side of the field this season.

J. Wray Henry, principal of the high school and chairman of the association, said that at present the panel is, discussing an 800 to 900 seat bleachers, ranging in price between $3,000 and $4,000.

Henry explained that the association probably will have to ask for funds for the new seating from local organizations and by subscription.

He said the new bleachers would give visiting fans more than a 50-50 chance at sitting down this season.

He explained that Pickaway County Agricultural Society will again rent its portable bleachers to the school this year. The Society's bleachers will seat from 1,200 to 1,500 fans, he said, meaning that if the new bleachers are obtained no one should have to stand this season.

$1,200 Pace To Open Fair

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 26 — A $1,200, 26-Pace race will open the harness racing programs at the Canfield Fairgrounds here Sept. 1.

Four harness racing sessions, billed as the feature of the Canfield Fair, are scheduled from opening day until the fair ends Labor Day.

Bert Millikin, superintendent, announced he has already received over 100 entries.

Chester Hedges Of Ashville Wins Trap Prize; Big Grand Starts

Chester Hedges, shotgun expert of nearby Ashville, Friday morning was sitting at the top of one of the many heaps at the trapshooting tournament being held in Vandalia, near Dayton.

Hedges, shooting from the 20-yard stripe chalked up 98 out of 100 clay pigeons. He had competed against a field of 1,559 other shooters in the handicap event. Five other men shot 98s, but from other yardage stripes.

But Friday was to be the big day. Some 1,700 scattergun toters were lining up on the firing line.

Akron Semipro Book Opener

AKRON, Aug. 26 — The Akron Browns, semipro football league titleholders, are slated to open a 12-game schedule Sept. 11 in Massillon.

The Browns, who began practice sessions yesterday, are trying to book semipro opponents to fill out their season schedule.

THIS HANDICAP event places

shooters on yardage stripes according to their abilities. Starting at the 16-yard stripe, they are staggered back from the traps yard-by-yard until—like Heiland, himself—shooting will be done from the clubhouse steps.

Ohmer Webb, 41-year-old Washington, D. C., contractor, pocketed almost $5,000 today for racking up the fourth perfect score in 50 years in the preliminary handicap yesterday.

Webb powdered 100 targets at 19 yards to edge Roger Dell, 51, of Fergus Falls, Minn., who missed his sixth pigeon at 20 yards. Dell is considered one of the northwest's crack duck shots.

Webb, who modestly claimed he never shot better than 97 before, is competing in his second national trapshoot.

Herb Parsons, 41, of Somerville, Tenn., took the professional championship with 98 at 23 yards. Second were Don Flewelling of Harvey, Ill., and Thomas R. Frye of Findlay, with 94 at 23 yards.

A three-way deadlock with 96 finished the women's event. Joan Pflueger of North Miami, Fla.; Frances King of Atlanta, Ga.; and Carolyn Elliott of Philadelphia were tied.

The tie broke when Miss King shattered 49 of 50 in a shootoff for the title. Miss Elliott took second and Miss Pflueger third.

Dr. O. T. Dean, 71, of Seattle defeated Dr. Byron Nixon of Farmland, Ind., with 24 targets broken in a shootoff for the Sports-a-Field trophy. They had tied at 96 in the regular try.

Pennsylvania's five-man team lost to Ohio in a shootoff after a 985-of-1000 tie. The Buckeye squad broke 124 of 125 for the title.

Cochell Due To Meet Italian

SEA BRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 26 — Defending Champion Earl Cochell of San Francisco meets Marcello Del Bello of Italy today in the quarter finals of the first annual Sea Bright invitation tennis tournament.

Top-seeded Cochell advanced by beating Arnold Saul of San Diego, Cal., yesterday, 6-3, 11-9, in a tough match. Del Bello, Italia Davis Cupper and third-seeded foreign entry, eliminated Frank Shields of New York, 7-5, 6-6, 6-4, in the round of 16.

Miami Looming As Grid Power

OXFORD, Aug. 26 — Woody Hayes, starting his first year as Miami university football coach, kept his fingers crossed in hopes that 61 of last year's players would show for an organization session today.

The Redskins start pre-season practice tomorrow, and if Hayes' hopes turn out right, old Miami—with 28 returning lettermen—will have one of its toughest squads in years.

Youth Canteen Members Engaged In Redecorating Their Clubrooms Here

Paint Brushes Now Flying

If Circleville Youth Canteen isn't the most attractive youth canteen in Central Ohio, only local youths can be blamed—because they are now in the process of redecorating the place themselves.

The large rooms over First National Bank this week are a clutter of paint buckets and brushes as members of Youth Canteen work to repaint and re-decorate the recreation spot.

Work started first on the "Rhythm Room" of the canteen, the largest room where the youngsters have their juke box, give their square dances and have their big parties.

Each of the rooms has a decorating committee with an adult supervisor. Now working on the "Rhythm Room" are Jeannine Bell, Barbara Neff, Charlotte Rader, Marjorie Thornton, Robert Workman, Jack Weidinger, Harold Huffer, Wayne Smith, Don Skinner, John Anderson, Gary Wilson, and Charles Waple. Adult supervisor is Vernon Blake.

The girls were washing wood-work and windows, cleaning the shutters and getting the room ready for the painters. The boys were mixing paint and testing out brushes. Harold Pontius supervised this job.

Mrs. Walter Heine, house committee chairman, said she hopes to have the redecorating job done in three weeks. According to Mrs. Heine, the decorators were undertaking the task on "faith and muscle." She seemed to have lot of faith herself and was looking forward to the Open House the canteen plans to have for its 250 members.

The parents association of the canteen helps the youngsters raise money for their organization. Officers of the parents' association are: President, Harold Pontius; vice-president, Mrs. James I. Smith; secretary, Mrs. Wayne Leist; and treasurer, Mrs. Myra Mader.

Mrs. Fred Boggs is adult hostess for the canteen.

After the "Rhythm Room" is completely redecorated, another committee will take over the work of the "Blue Room" which is the lounge or reading room and is furnished with tables, lamps and chairs.

The Varsity Room probably will be the last room to undergo the repaint job. Booths and soft drink bar there will get a new coat of paint as well walls and woodwork.

Today's Fashion Flash

NEW YORK, Aug. 26 — Women should wear hats in bed! John Fredericks, one of the world's top designers, said today that he will introduce a velvet, pearl-trimmed nightcap next month—and he thinks it will start a bed-bonnet trend.

The "honeymoon hat" is a beige velvet model, dotted with seed pearls and reminiscent of old-time "duster caps." It will be made to match certain lingerie designed by Lady Duff for Trousseau.

"Hats in bed," said the designer, "are not a necessity. But they serve to cover a lady's pin curls, and they can be as attractive as a cocktail chapeau."

It may become vital, he said, for sleepers to be stylish!

When you want to stuff prunes for salad or dessert, steam them over hot water until they are plump and tender, then slit, remove the pits, and stuff as desired. For salad, prunes may be stuffed with pimento cheese and served on greens. For dessert, stuff with chopped, preserved ginger and nuts and serve with soft custard sauce or whipped cream.

Courtesy and interest in your problems are part of our service. You will find it a business-like arrangement to borrow the money for your new car from us. Low interest rates—convenient repayments.

Vets' Aide Gives Tips On Preparing For NSLI Dividends

Do Nothing Before Next Monday, Plea

Shea Details VA Program

Here are the most important things for World War II veterans to remember when applying for their National Service Life Insurance dividend from the Veterans Administration, according to James P. Shea, Pickaway County veterans service officer.

1—Wait until August 29 (next Monday) before doing anything.

2—See about getting a dividend application form from one of the four sources available—the postoffice, a Veterans Administration office, a Veterans organization service officer, or the office of the local county veterans service officer.

3—Read the first section of the form, which is devoted to instructions, and decide whether procedure is understood. If not, ask the county service officer for help in filling it out correctly. This will mean swifter action on the part of the VA, and a quicker monetary return to the veteran.

4—When filling out the form, be as neat as possible, especially in name spelling and address listing. Be sure to list an address at which mail can be received for the six month period following the date of application.

5—If the veteran does not remember his policy number which is requested on the blank, don't worry about it. The VA wants those numbers for ready reference, but they are not essential. There is also a blank space for veterans to write in their "claim numbers," if any. If a veteran has been issued such a number, he should note the number correctly in space provided—if none was issued, forget it. The VA has the name, rank and serial number of every eligible veteran.

6—Once the application is in the mail, don't worry about how soon payment will be made, and don't use the anticipated amount as a promissory note for personal debts. The VA will have about 17 million veterans' records to check, so individual correspondence will only delay YOUR dividend.

Beneficiaries of deceased veterans who are entitled to a share of the refund need not bother with the form. They will be mailed a check by the VA.

The local office of the county veterans' service officer will be glad to aid veterans in filing for their NSLI refund, and will remain open until 9 p. m. on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and, if need be, Thursday and Friday, Shea said.

City To Vote On Short Week

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Columbus city council will put on the Nov. 8 ballot a proposal for a 40-hour week for city policemen.

Council President Joseph R. Jones said the ordinance, sponsored by the Fraternal Order of Police, will be passed Sept. 6. The question was originally scheduled to go to the voters without council's action on a petition signed by 15,000 voters. The signatures were gathered by the FOP when council earlier refused to pass the measure.

Patrolmen now work a 48-hour week. Under the proposal they would still work 48 hours, but would receive overtime for the sixth day.

Test Pilot's Tax Status Worries Revenue Experts

CLEVELAND, Aug. 26—Test Pilot Grover Tyler's four-year wartime stay at some of Cleveland's best hotels and apartments is giving the Bureau of Internal Revenue a tax nightmare.

Tyler, a $10,000 a year pilot for United Air Lines in Seattle, came to Cleveland in 1942 to test automatic pilots and other flight instruments for a manufacturing firm.

During his stay, Tyler said he put up at the best hotels and apartments, spent lavishly on military friends and came home one day to find his wife and $36,525 in money and bonds gone.

He tried to salvage as much as he could by claiming income tax deductions amounting to $29,082 for 1942 through 1945.

But Judge C. Rogers Arundell of the United States tax court in Washington has upheld the Bureau of Internal Revenue in its slashing of the deductions to a mere $2,554.

Just how much Tyler has to pay in additional taxes is a complex matter for experts of the federal tax agency.

Medics Give Up Hope For Child

SALEM, Aug. 26—Little Donna Marie Saunders, who has been in a coma for seven months, was to be returned to a Salem hospital today to await a fate which Cleveland physicians say is inevitable.

The seven-year-old child from Lisbon was pronounced incurable by doctors at Cleveland Clinic yesterday after brain x-rays and encephalographs revealed "irreparable" damage to her brain.

The girl was injured Feb. 9 when she was struck by a coal truck near her home. She has been unconscious since that time.

Lima May Lose Bus System

LIMA, Aug. 26—Lima faces the loss of its city bus lines today if transportation officials and councilmen fail to agree on a compromise measure to renew the franchise Sept. 1.

Officials asked the bus drivers to take a ten-cent-an-hour pay reduction and requested permission to boost the fares of the lines. The bus firm also proposed to drop one complete route.

McCall Company Chieftain Dies

DAYTON, Aug. 26—Funeral services will be held Saturday for William S. Robinson, 67, general manager of the McCall Corp., magazine publishers here. The English-born business leader who emigrated through Canada in 1903 died yesterday of cancer in Miami Valley hospital.

Canal Defense Plans Changed

WASHINGTON, Aug. 26—Defense Department officials said today that Defense Secretary Johnson's sweeping economy order will leave the Panama Canal entirely without fighter plane protection—a change in strategic thinking.

Johnson, in eliminating 135,000 civilian jobs from the Defense Department Wednesday, included Howard Air Force Base in the Canal Zone as one of the 51 installations to be closed down.

Instead of being regarded as vital area which must be defended, the Canal Zone now is considered far "behind the lines" of any possible conflict.

Canton Youth Shares Honors In GM Contest

DETROIT, Aug. 26—Howard Assel of Canton shared top honors today in the 1949 model car competition of the Fisher Body Craftsmen's Guild, despite a serious mishap when his model was in the final stages of construction.

Dr. George J. Fisher, national Boy Scout commissioner and honorary Guild president presented Assel, an Ohio State university student with a $4,000 university scholarship here last night.

Assel shared first place honors with Elia Russinoff of Detroit, son of a General Motors employee. Contest regulations specify when a GM employee's son qualifies, duplicate awards shall be given, so both boys got scholarships.

The Canton youth told the judges that during the final weeks of preparation, his model fell to the floor, smashing the rear fender fins and the hood line. He met this reverse by altering the design of his fenders and building up the smashed hood with a false, plastic nose.

here after an illness of more than a year.

Active in civic affairs, Robinson also was a director of the McCall Corp., which he joined in 1923 after association with the old Collier Publishing Co. and the Andrew Kellogg Co.

Here's Another Cow-In-Silo Mystery Story

OSCEOLA, Wis., Aug. 26—A frisky young lady with an appropriate name and an urge to squeeze the most out of life is feeling mighty low in Osceola today.

In fact, about 12 feet too low. It all began yesterday when "Snoopy," a 650-pound heifer, wriggled through an opening 20 inches by 24 inches and landed—unhurt—12 feet below on the floor of a silo.

"Snoopy" thereby outwriggled an Oklahoma bovine named "Grady" who squeezed herself into a silo through an opening "about as big as a newspaper page" last Feb. 14. "Grady" was freed two weeks later by a visiting reporter and a bucket of grease.

The Osceola heifer, a pet of 13-year-old Cheriene Lampman, sneaked into a cornfield yesterday and was being chased out by Everett Lampman when she saw the silo opening.

The big squeeze followed. Now Lampman wants to know: "How do I get her out of there?"

Barkeep Cited In Man's Death

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Bartender Frank Machese, 21, was held in Columbus city prison for questioning today in connection with the death of Robert Barley of High Point, N. C., yesterday.

Police said Barley suffered a fractured skull during a scuffle at the tavern where Machese worked last Monday and the bartender threw him out.

Mrs. Bolton Likes Vichy

VICHY, Aug. 26—Rep. Frances Bolton, R., (O.), was in Vichy today for medical treatment. She said:

"I feel very much better since I arrived. I don't know yet how long the medical care will last but Vichy is lovely."

Ohio AFL Names All Officers To Retain Positions

COLUMBUS, Aug. 26—Delegates to the 64th annual convention of the Ohio State Federation of Labor in Columbus were to end their meeting today with the same officers who have served for several years.

Michael J. Lyden of Youngstown was reelected president for his fifteenth term yesterday and Phil Hannah of Columbus was reelected to his eighth term as executive secretary. The vote in both cases was unanimous. A surprise visitor in the afternoon as Harry O'Reilly of Washington, director of AFL organization, who disclosed AFL membership soon would be comfortably over the eight-million mark. He credited organization in the tobacco and lumber industries with the recent growth.

A reported move to oppose John E. Breidenbach of Dayton as second vice-president apparently was beaten down before it could get started and seven vice-presidents also were reelected without opposition.
